SIX DEATHS AND HEAVY PROPERTY LOSS IN FLOODS

Million Dollar Property Loss Reported from Flood Districts.

RAIL CONNECTIONS OFF

Ada Again Practically Off Rail Connections With Recent Washout.

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 19.—
With six persons known to be dead and several missing and damage to property estimated in the millions, Oklahoma today watched the recession of the flood waters which had inundated many sections of the state for nearly a week. As the crest of the high water passed eastward reconstruction work took shape rapidly.

Every effort to resume train service by the end of the week by the railroads which suffered damage second only to farm lands have secured working crews to repair bridges and track destroyed by the torrent. Lines of communication are being restored in numerous localities.

Large areas of the lowlands in the central and eastern parts of the state still are covered with water but the rivers and small streams falling, the danger is believed past.
Less than 500 persons of the thousands driven from their homes here are still dependent on relief agencies.

The drowning of two boys near Chickasha and recovery of the bodies of two more flood victims here one of them a Salvation Army woman worker, brought the total known death toll to six last night.

Ada was again on the casualty list for railroad connection today as a result of a second washout near Weleetka on the Frisco main line.

With the crest of the flood waters of the North Canadian past Oklahoma City, where thousands of dollars in property loss was suffered, the rush of high waters again played havoc with railroad connections in its southward flow to empty into the Arkansas.

The holdup on the Frisco, caused by the washout, was the second during the week to interfere with railroad traffic on this division, flood waters from an early rise having cut off the lead to the North Canadian bridge near Weleetka on the first rise.

Owing to the fact that telephone communication is also impaired by the high waters, no information could be received here as to the seriousness of the washout.

Railroad officials here stated that the trackage would not be repaired before tomorrow or late Saturday night.

While the washout on the North Canadian still hindered traffic on the Frisco, the temporary schedule used during the early part of the week will be in use. Trains will be run to Wetumka and return.

The detouring of fast Katy main line trains over the Frisco was also halted by the washout near Weleetka.

While the Frisco was again on the casualty list, other railroads effecting Ada could report no improvement of train service today. The Santa Fe offers a one-train daily service, leaving Ada at 7:30
a. m. and returning at 6 p. m., making connections at Byars. The Katy runs a mixed local to Coalgate every two days.

MUSKOGEE, Oct. 19.—A new flood crest in the North Canadian battering its way down stream after devastating the Oklahoma City lowlands earlier in the week, this morning cut the Frisco main line at the bridge south of Weleetka, holding up three limited Katy passenger trains being detoured over the Frisco tracks.

PORT SMITH STRICKEN BY WATER FAMINE NOW

(By the Associated Press)
PORT SMITH, Oct. 19.—Relieved of the menace of the flood in the Arkansas river, which began falling early yesterday, the city today faced a "water famine." The water supply was contaminated by back waters from the Poteau river from which the city draws its supply.
The filtration plant is out of commission, all laundries have suspended operations and public utilities are without an adequate supply.

Rebel War in Tripoli

(By the Associated Press)
LONDON, Oct. 19.—Italian troops in Tripoli yesterday attacked a force of 1,500 rebels south of Mt. Sunata, says a Central News dispatch from Rome. The rebels were dispersed, leaving 440 dead, a large number of wounded and considerable booty.

Sheriffs Office Seeks Secrecy

In this period of secrecy and invisible raids, the county sheriff's office has gathered the fever and started some secret campaign all its own.

While due secrecy is next to impossible, the sheriff's office intends to advance the cause as far as possible and accordingly—sought a private telephone booth for the office.

Through the courtesy of the telephone office, a private booth is being installed in the sheriff's office for toll free usage.

Undersheriff P. H. Deal announced that on two occasions, accomplices of prospective prisoners listened to conversations over the telephone at his desk and later imparted the information, preventing the arrest.

The booth will also afford other offices in the court building a fitting place for strictly private and secret telephone discussions.

The booth does a strictly cash toll business—another feature favoring its installation.

COUNTY SESSION HALTED IN GRIND

Forces Continuance of Court Session.

With a greater increase in the number of missing witnesses in cases up for trial in county court here before Judge Tal Crawford, the remaining cases on docket will be held over until January.

Judge Crawford announced the continuance of the session when witnesses for this morning and the county attorney's office reported unable to go to trial without necessary witnesses.

A number of witnesses were reported waterbound in parts of the state and unable to be here on the date for trial of cases making a thorough investigation of charges impossible.

The county court has been hindered with the absence of witnesses for important cases since its opening here Monday but attempted to continue with cases that were ready for trial. The absence of several witnesses in federal court at Ardmore also interfered with the county court session.

Regardless of the obstacles in the holding of county court, several cases were brought to trial and jury verdicts rendered. Five pleas of guilty on charges in connection with violation of liquor laws were received in the first day of the session and sentences were scheduled to be rendered today.

Out of the number of cases dealing with violation of booze laws, the county received a just share of convictions at the hands of the jury.

Most of the charges in the county docket will be brought to trial in January.

High School Game At Madill Called Off Indefinitely

The Ada Hi grid squad was unable to complete its schedule with Madill today because of railroad schedules being delayed, it was announced at the high school today.

A delay in the train schedule caused by washouts on the Frisco near Weleetka prevented the squad from reaching Madill in time to play their game there this afternoon.

While the first string rests today,
the second squad will journey to Roff to tangle with the high school squad of that place. The game with Roff is the second the Ada Hi yearlings has scheduled for the season.

The first and second string players have been kept hard at work during the past week, despite weather conditions and were in the best of spirits for the games today.

LONE DRUNK AGAIN HAS POLICE COURT ATTENTION

One lone drunk staggered into the police station last night, accompanied by a local policeman and this morning constituted the entire attention of the regular police court session. He paid a fine assessed by the court and was released.

The arrest was the fifth on the same charge during the week.

Coolidge the fullest co-operation in the enforcement of prohibition was adopted by the fifteenth annual conference of governors

ZEV-PAPYRUS RACE LOOMS BIG; RESULT SMALL MATTER

The coming international race between Harry Sinclair's Zev and Ben Irish's Papyrus at Belmont N. Y., will rank as one of the big sporting events of the year—along with the Dempsey-Firpo fight and the victory of the American team in the Davis tennis matches. Zev stands out as one of the stars of the thoroughbred season in the U. S. Papyrus

LLOYD GEORGE GIVEN OVATION IN ST. LOUIS

(By the Associated Press)
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 19.—David Lloyd-George, war-time premier of Great Britain, and his party touring the United States, arrived here at 8:58 this morning from Springfield, Illinois.

A crowd began to gather shortly after the distinguished visitor's train was placed on a siding in the western part of the city and when the former premier stepped from the train at 10:30 he was given a rousing reception.

The first regiment of the Missouri National Guard stood at present arms and 50 members of the British-Canadian veterans organization saluted their former chief. A military band from Jefferson barracks played American and Welsh airs.

Mayor Kiel and Edward Hidden, a local business man who was chairman of the reception committee, greeted Lloyd-George, his wife Dame Margaret and daughter, Miss Megan.

The visitors were taken on an automobile ride through the decorated streets of St. Louis, while the crowds gathered along the route greeted them with rousing shouts.

Elihu Root Kept To Bed With New Illness Attack

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Elihu
Root is suffering from an attack of kidney trouble and is confined to his bed at his home in this city.
His secretary said today. Doctors were reported to have discovered a stone in his left kidney but they hope to remove it without an operation.

Mr. Root became ill three weeks ago on his return from a vacation in the country but the nature of his illness was not revealed until a few days ago. At his law offices it was said he was not expected to return to his desk for several weeks.

CHERRY REFUSED TO QUIT POST IN END OFFICE

(By the Associated Press)
ENID, Oct. 19.—H. S. Cherry, who was removed by Gov. Walton last week as superintendent of the Oklahoma Institute for the feeble minded here, has refused to vacate his office in favor of N. McCord, who was appointed in his place. Mr.
McCord, who arrived here yesterday refused to comment on the matter other than confirm the report that Mr. Cherry had refused to vacate his office.

OKMULGEE CITIZENS TO SEEK NEW RAILROADS

OKMULGEE, Oct. 19.—Okmulgee citizens, led by the Chamber of Commerce, are to make an effort to show the need of additional railroad facilities at a hearing this afternoon before Corporation Commissioner Joe Cobb of a petition by the Okmulgee Northern railroad for permission to build two extensions.

Cotton

Cotton began to move again
Thursday and 24 bales were received at the county scales. This, of course, was picked before the rains
but with the sun shining again, assisted by a stiff breeze, everything will soon be normal and picking resumed.

Wheeler Ward reports that 950 bales have been received at his scales during the season.

AIRPLANE MAIL SERVICE STILL LACKING HERE

The airplane mail service for Ada has not functioned yet, according to the announcement of local postoffice officials.
Since the first announcement that Ada would receive important mail by airplane, railroad mail service had improved considerably.

Canine Tax Has Delinquents

It's a hard row—this dog's life in Ada.

Only 71 of the local tribe of canines, who bear with pride the distinction of "city dogs," are legally entitled to trot the muddy streets of Ada.

Records in the city finance files indicate that all others should die at the hands of the city executor.

Since January 1, only 71 owners have renewed the license permits for dogs against the firing squad of city police.

Despite the natural increase in the dog family, hundreds have faced an ignoble death since the beginning of the year, according to records of the city. Ofttimes the death toll reached fifteen or more for one week, while a steady extermination is reported at all times.

City officers declare that there must be a greater display of canine love, to the tune of one dollar, the license fee, or the extermination campaign will be intensified to the extent that exactly 71 dogs will be allowed to roam the streets.

NEW YORK FACES KLAN OUTBREAK

Officials and Klan Mix Near New York Town During Initiation.

(By the Associated Press)

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 19.—
Two men are under arrest and the possibility of an investigation looming as the aftermath of an armed clash today between police and deputy sheriffs and an initiation party of 600 Ku Klux near Campbell Center. Those under arrest were William Losier and Charles Turver, both of Niagara Falls. Thirteen others, including one woman, were questioned at the district attorney's office today but were not held.
Losier and Turver were held on an open charge.

Sheriff Benjamin Gould received reports from motorists last night that armed men garbed in white were stopping automobile parties on the Saunders settlement road.
The sheriff with two deputies and three Lockport policemen went to investigate. When their car reached the vicinity of the field in which the Klan initiation was purported to be taking place it was stopped by two robed sentinels.

According to the officers when the sheriff's party failed to halt as ordered one of them was struck by a Klan guard. The sentinel was felled with the butt of a revolver in the hands of one of the investigating party.

Shouts of the guard attracted Klansmen from the field and as the sheriff started to advance toward the enclosure the little knot of officers was surrounded. Gould and his men retreated towards the road and made a dash for their car. As the men sped away a scattered volley of shots broke out but no one was injured.

My Own Substituted for Zev as Entry Against Papyrus

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—My Own has been substituted for Zev as the American representative against the British Derby winner Papyrus in the $100,000 international horse race at Belmont Park, the New York Sun says. Many rumors have been afloat during the past two days, one of which was to the effect that Zev had suddenly developed a malady, but this was unconfirmed.

The crop of rumors grew in volume when it was reported yesterday that My Own, owned by Rear Admiral Graydon had been ordered from Laurel Maryland, to be held in readiness as a possible substitute for Zev.

From other sources it was reported that Maj. August Belmont chairman of the Jockey club, was meeting at the club house with his colleagues to consider the substitution of My Own.

MURRAY GIBBONS UNDER FIRE FOR OFFICIAL DEEDS

House Investigation Reports
Gibbons and Policemen Receive Fees.

CALLAHAN IN FIRE

Judge Advocate Questioned on State of Affairs in Tulsa.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 19.—Fees for securing a parole for Ira Williams, at liberty since the revocation of his parole several months ago, were paid to Murray Gibbons, former speaker of the house and at present a leader of the Walton forces in that body, and J. Garrison Kitchens, former Oklahoma City policeman, the house investigating committee was told today, according to W. E. Disney, chairman of the committee.

Disney said the fees amounted to $1,500 of which Gibbons received $1,000 and Kitchens $500, according to the testimony. The sum of $23,000 had previously been spent in Williams' defense at the trial which resulted in his conviction at Okmulgee last year on a charge of criminal assault, it was stated.

Caldwell Is Summoned.
Simultaneously with the house committee investigations important witnesses were being summoned to appear before the grand jury at the court house which is investigating the official conduct of Governor Walton. Among the subpoenas issued was one for W. D. Caldwell, from whom Gov. Walton purchased his new home.

Major Louis Ledbetter, judge advocate of the Oklahoma National Guard, was interrogated by the house committee today regarding the state of insurrection which Gov.
Walton said existed in Tulsa county at the time martial law was declared
there. It was understood, Major Ledbetter is said to have told the committee that Tulsa was tranquil when occupied by troops on August 14.

Representative J. W. Callahan's wife and father-in-law are on the state pay roll, testimony taken by the committee disclosed, according to Marshall L. Smith, a committee member. Callahan is a staunch supporter of Governor Walton and lives in Latimer county. His relatives are alleged to be connected with the Wilburton school of mines. Mrs.
Callahan is a regent of the school,
according to the pay roll record.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 19.—
The house investigating committee
to complete its work by Monday in the inquiry into the impeachment charges against Gov. J. C. Walton.

It had been expected that the report would be presented to the lower house of the legislature today, but Representative W. E. Disney of Muskogee, the committee chairman, announced it would be impossible to finish the work until Monday because of much new evidence brought to light.

Georgia Man and Son Killed from Ambush; Man Held

(By the Associated Press)

VALDOSIA, Ga., Oct. 19.—Sher-od McGill, 65, and his son Tally were shot to death from ambush here today. The bodies were found on the seat of the truck in which they were riding. The heads of both had been pierced by bullets.

It is reported here that John Rogers has been arrested and taken to the Cook county jail in connection with the killing. Persons living near the scene of the ambush are said to have told officers they heard a conversation before and after the shooting. They said they heard a man say:

"You have killed me," and another voice reply: "If I haven't I will finish it." More shots followed, officers were told.

Pontotoc County Prisoner Obtains Governor's Pardon

Pontotoc county has contributed again to the long list of pardons given out at the hands of the present administration under Gov. J. C.
Walton.

Ed Steward, convicted in Pontotoc county October 23, 1921, on charge of first degree robbery and auto theft, received a pardon from Governor Walton. Papers stated that others had confessed to two of the crimes.

Stewart's pardon was listed at 280 in the clemency list of Governor Walton.

The Branding Iron

By Katharine Newlin Burt

That was the sort of night he had spent and the next day he passed in a lethargy. He had no heart to face the future now that the great purpose of his life had failed. Holliswell's God of comfort and forgiveness forsake him. What did he want with a God when that one comrade of his lonely, young, human life was out there lost by his own cruelty? Perhaps she was dead. Perhaps the wound had killed her. For all these years she might have been lying dead somewhere in the snow, under the sky. Sharp periods of pain followed dull periods of stupor. Now it was night again and a recollection of Jasper's theater ticket had dragged him to a vague purpose. He wanted to see again that woman who had so vivified his memory of Joan. It would be hateful to see her again, but he wanted the pain. He dressed and groomed himself carefully. Then, feeling a little faint, he went out into the clattering, glaring night.

Pierre's experience of theater-going was exceedingly small. He had never been in so large a playhouse as this one of Morena's; he had never seen so large and well-dressed an audience; never heard a full and well-trained orchestra. In spite of himself, he began to be distracted, excited, stirred.

When the curtain rose on the beautiful tropical scene, the lush island, the turquoise sea, the realistic strip of golden sand, Pierre gave an audible oath of admiration and surprise. The people about him began to be amused by the excitement of this handsome, haggard young man, so graceful and intense, so different with his hardness and leanness, the brilliance of his eyes, the brownness of his skin. His clothes were good enough, but they fitted him with an odd air of disguise. An experienced eye would inevitably have seen the appropriateness of flannel shirt, gaily silk neck-handkerchief, boots, spurs and chaparrans. Pierre was entirely unaware of being interesting or different. At that moment, caught up in the action of the play, he was as outside of himself as a child.

The puls of stage-land stirred, the ferns swayed; between their tall, vivid greenness came Joan with her tread and grace and watchful eyes of a leopardess, her loose, wild hair decked with flowers; these and her make-up and her thinness disguised her completely from Pierre, but again his heart came to his throat and, when she put her hands up to her mouth and called, his pulses came a leap. He shut his eyes. He remembered a voice calling him in to supper. "Pierre! Pierre!" He could sniff the smoke of his cabin fire. He opened his eyes. Of course she wasn't Joan, this

DYNAMIC STORY OF SOCIETY TOLD IN CINEMA FORM

Practically every human being in the United States who hasn't been at Coney Island, the famous eastern pleasure spot, has read about it time and again.

There is a certain fascination about the atmosphere of that carnival section. There are freaks of all types, human and animal, clowns pretty girls and strong men. Behind their makeups and pretences, they are human as more than one fictionist has discovered and written.

Vienna was once the most dazzling center of Europe. Besides it had a romantic glamor differing from the appeal that any other Continental capital held for the average tourist. Its Coney Island, called the Prater, was a great sight. Then the war came along and—well, those people are human, just as they would be on this side of the water. They suffered; gold stars, starvation and poverty.

Written into the form of a motion picture spectacle, this intriguing atmosphere will be seen on the screen when "Merry-Go-Round," Universal Super-Jewel offering, comes to the American theatre next Monday.

"Merry-Go-Round" which cost time, money and care to film, is the story of two lovers separated as widely by caste as two human beings could be. One is a poor girl of the Prater, an organ grinder. The other is a young count, aide to the Emperor and slave to every royal whim—but leading a life of pompous idleness.

The father and mother of the girl, a faithful hunchback sweet-heart, a great beast of a man who rules a big concession—these and others of the picturesque population of the Prater appear in "Merry-Go-Round."

Mary Philbin, Universal's "discovery" of the year, plays the organ grinder's role. Norman Kerry, George Hackathorne, Dale Fuller, George Seligman, Al Edmundson, Cesare Gravina, Edith Yorke, Lilian Silvester, Maude George, Dorothy Wallace, Sidney Bracy, Spottiswoode Aitken, Maurice Talbot, Penwick Oliver, Albert Conti, Anton Vaverka, Charles L. King, Helen Broneau, Jane Sherman and others handle the dramatic roles.

Rupert Julian directed, with a staff of ex-citizens of Vienna.

strange, gaunt creature. Besides, his wife could never have done what this woman was doing. Why, Joan couldn't talk like this, she couldn't act to save her soul! She was as simple as a child, and shy, with the self-conscious shyness of wild things. To be sure, this "actress-lady" was making believe she was a wild thing, and she was doing it almighty well, but Joan had been the reality, and grave and still, part of his own big, grave mountain country, not a fierce, mandevouring animal of the tropics. Pierre lived in the play with all but one fragment of his brain, and that remembered Joan. It hurt like a hot coal, but he deliberately ignored the pain of it.

He followed the action breathlessly, applauded with contagious fervor, surreptitiously rid himself of tears, and when, in the last scene, the angry, jealous woman sprang upon her tamer, he muttered, "Serve you right, you coyote!" with an oath of the cow-camp that made one of his neighbors jump and throttle a startled laugh.

The curtain fell, and while the applause rose and died down and rose again, and the people called for "Jane West! Jane West!" the stage-director, a plump little Jew, came out behind the footlights and held up his hand. There was a gradual silence.

"I want to make an interesting announcement," he said; "the author of 'The Leopardess' has hitherto maintained his anonymity, but tonight I have permission to give you his name. He is in the theater tonight. The name is already familiar to you as that of the author of a popular novel, 'The Canyon'; Prosper Gael."

There was a stir of interest, a general searching of the house, clapping, cries of "Author! Author!" and in a few moments Prosper Gael left his box and appeared beside the director in answer to the calls. He was entirely self-possessed, looked even a little bored, but he was very white. He stood there bowing, a graceful and attractive figure, and he was about to begin a speech when he was interrupted by a renewed calling for "Jane West!" The audience wanted to see the star and the author side by side. Pierre joined in the clamor.

After a little pause Jane West came out from the opposite wing, walking slowly, dressed in her green gown, jewels on her neck and in her hair. She did not look toward the audience at all, nor bow, nor smile, and for some reason the applause began to falter as though the sensitive mind of the crowd was already aware that here something must be wrong. She came very slowly, her arms hanging, her head bent, her eyes looking up from under her brows, and she stood beside Prosper Gael, whose forced smile had stiffened on his lips. He looked at her in obvious fear, as a man might look at a dangerous madwoman. There must have been madness in her eyes. She stood there for a strange, terrible moment, moving her head slightly from side to side. Then she said something in a very low tone. Because of the extraordinary carrying quality of her voice—the question was heard by everyone there present:

"You wrote the play? You wrote the play?"

She said it twice. She seemed to quiver, to gather herself together, her hands bent, her arms lifted. She flew at Prosper with all the sudden strength of her insanity.

There was an outcry, a confusion. People rushed to Gael's assistance. Men caught hold of Joan, now struggling frantically. It was a dreadful sight, mercifully a brief one. She collapsed utterly, fell forward, the strap of her gown breaking in the grasp of one of the men who held her. For an instant everyone in the audience saw a strange double scar that ran across her shoulder to the edge of the shoulder-blade. It was like two bars.

Pierre got to his feet, dropped back, and hid his face. Then he was up, and struggling past excited people down the row, out into the aisle, along it, hurrying blindly down unknown passages till somehow he got himself into that confused labyrinth behind the scenes. Here a pale, distracted scene-shifter informed him that Miss West had already been taken home.

Pierre got the address, found his way out to the street, hailed a taxicab and threw himself into it. He sat forward, every muscle tight; he felt that he could take the taxicab up and hurl it forward, so terrible was his impatience.

An apartment house was a greater novelty to him even than a theater, but after a dazed moment of discovering that he did not have to ring or knock, but just push open the great iron-screwed door and step into the brightly lighted, steam-heated marble hall, he decided that the woman at the desk was a person in authority, and to her he addressed himself, soft hat gripped in his hand, his face set to hide excitement.

The girl was pale and red-eyed. They had brought Miss West in a few minutes ago, she told him, and carried her up. She was still unconscious; poor thing! "I don't think you could see her, sir. Mr. Morena is up there, and Mr. Gael, and a doctor. A trained nurse has been sent for. Everything in the world will be done. She's such an elegant actress, ain't she? I've often seen her myself. And so kind and pleasant always. Yes, sir, I'll ask, if you like, but I'm sure they won't allow you up."

She put the receiver to her ear, pushed in the black plug, and Pierre listened to her questions.

"Can Miss West see anyone? Can an old friend?"—for so Pierre had named himself—"be allowed to see her? No, I thought not." This, with a sympathetic glance at Pierre. "She is not conscious yet. Dangerously ill." "Could I speak to the doctor?" Pierre asked hoarsely.

"The gentleman wants to know if he can speak to the doctor. Certainly not at present. If he will wait, the doctor will speak to him on the way out."

Pierre sat on the bench and waited. He leaned forward, elbows on knees, head crushed in both hands, and the woman stared at him pitifully—not that he was aware of her scrutiny. His eyes looked through his surroundings to Joan. He saw her in every pose and in every look in which he had ever seen her, and, with a very sick and frightened heart, he saw her, at the last, pass by him in her fur coat, throwing him that half-contemptuous look and smile. She didn't know him. Was he changed so greatly? Or was the change in her so enormous that it had disassociated her completely from her old life from him? He kept repeating to himself Holliswell's stern, admonishing speech: "However changed for the worse she may be when you do find her, Pierre, you must remember that it is your fault, your sin. You must not judge her, must not dare to judge her. Judge yourself. Condemn yourself. It is for her to forgive if she can bring herself to do it."

So now Pierre fought down his suspicions and his fears. He had not recognized Prosper. The man who had come in out of the white night, four years ago, had worn his cap low over his eyes, his collar turned up about his face, and, even at that, Pierre, in his drunken stupor, had not been able to see him very clearly. This Prosper Gael who had stood behind the footlights, this Prosper Gael at whom Joan, for some unknown cause, had sprung like a woman mad, denuded by injury, was a person entirely strange to Pierre. But Pierre hated him. The man had done Joan some insufferable mischief, which at the last had driven her beside herself. Pierre put up a hand, pressing it against his eyes. He wanted to shut out the picture of that struggling girl with her torn dress and the double scar across her shoulder. If it hadn't been for the scar he would never have known her—his Joan, his gentle, silent Joan! What had they been doing to her to change her so? No, not they. He. He had changed her. He had branded her and driven her out. It was his fault. He must try to find her again, to find the old Joan—if she should live. The doctor had said that she was desperately ill. O God! What was keeping him so long? Why didn't he come?

The arrival of the trained nurse distracted Pierre for a few moments. She went past him in her gray cloak, very quiet and earnest, and the elevator lifted her out of sight.

"Were you in the theater tonight?" asked the girl at the desk, seeing that he was temporarily aware of her again.

IOWAN RANKS HIGH AS SCHOLAR AND ATHLETE

(By the Associated Press)
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 17.—Athletics in scholastic difficulties have always been the bane of the college coaches' lives, but there is a man on the Harvard squad this season who gives Coach Fisher no concern on that score. Henry T. Dunker of Davenport, Iowa, who started the Yale football game last year at tackle, in the nine study courses of his first two years, received the grade of A, the highest mark according to the Harvard system.

Coming to Harvard with no preparatory school experience in football, Dunker decided to try for his freshman team and made it. He also went out for the track team, running on the relay four in the winter and putting the shot in the spring. He was elected captain during his first year he received 5 A's in his courses.

Starting his sophomore year with the ambition of getting on the first football squad, Dunker exceeded his own hopes by making the varsity team as tackle and winning second place in the shot-put in the annual meet with the Ells. His marks in his four courses were again the highest obtainable. Last summer he went to England on the cabined Harvard-Yale track team to meet the Oxford-Cambridge team.

This, his junior year, he stands as a veteran tackle sure of his place on the varsity eleven.

PREMIER'S OLD SWEETHEART WITNESSES HIS TRIUMPH

ROME.—The commune of Predappio, where Premier Mussolini was born, recently acquired the house of his birth and gave it to him. He was present at the ceremony, and the people acclaimed him deliriously.

In the crowd was a woman still unmarried who, years ago, said to Mussolini as he wooed her with the impetuosity of youth: "We are both as poor as poor can be, and if we married we should only bring into the world beings equally poor to suffer and want. It is better that we agree to part." "By all means," replied Mussolini, and went his way to become prime minister.

Why Plant Shrubs in the Fall

The Autumn is generally considered to be the very best planting season for shrubs. If set out then, they will have fully two months more of growth than if they are set out in the springtime, which will provide that much more strength to withstand the usual summer drought, which is the greatest enemy of newly set shrubs, even though planting has been done most carefully and properly.

At this season of the year, furthermore, there is far more time to devote to the careful planting of the shrubs, than if one waits until the spring. The rush of summer work is over, most of the important gardening has been accomplished, and we now have time in which to properly plan where the shrubs may be suitably established and just what spot in the garden awaits the special variety that is appropriate for it.

When the impulse is with us to do shrub planting, we had better follow it, as if we wait until next spring's garden work again seizes us, the shrub planting may be postponed indefinitely.

Many shrubs if planted now will bloom early next spring and summer, thus giving the added attraction of their blooming a year sooner than they would if we waited to plant them in the spring.

As the shrub planting is to be permanent, it will be about as important to your future happiness and contentment as is the building of your house, garage, tree planting or any of the rest of your home improvements. Before actually planting, therefore, carefully map out your grounds, deciding where each shrub is to be placed,—large specimen shrubs, tall shrubs for a background, screens, informal hedges, hedges along paths or fences, or groupings massed along fences or drives, or foundation plantings around the house. Your shrub planting will probably take place after the first hard frosts, but do not wait until the "first hard frost" to make all your necessary preparation, and ordering your stock of shrubs. Make all your plans for the planting as long before as is possible and have your shrub arrive in time.

The "foundation planting," or planting the shrubs around the house, should really be given the very first place in importance when we order our shrubs. No house seems to be properly clothed or complete until it has a few shrubs nestling about its foundations whether they be of stone or wood. There is scarcely a house that would not receive a boost in the real estate market if shrubs were planted artistically about its foundations. In shrubby plantings around the house, care should be taken to plant the tall growing varieties at the corners, and on either side of the entrances, while the low growing shrubs fill the intervening spaces.

Probably one of the most effective, hardiest growing and satisfactory of all shrubs to include in those for your foundation planting is the hydrangea. Growing rapidly into a handsome and showy beauty, with many different varieties of white, pink or blue, the hydrangea has become one of the most popular of shrubs for massing about the

Jobs are scarce for the Physically Run-Down

THE DOOR of opportunity flings wide its portals only to the man who is up and doing—who is filled with pep and punch—with rich, red blood tingling through his veins. Mountain size obstacles dwindle to ant hills and ambitions become accomplishments to these sort of men.

Where is the employer who seeks the man who is physically run-down?—The man without stamina to withstand the knocks and gaff of the hurrying, scurrying world of business?

S. S. S. is the long established and time honored creator of red blood cells. You cannot expect to get very far up the ladder unless you are equipped with a body that is strong and vigorous. S. S. S. will start you on your way. Don't allow the "Door of Opportunity" to be closed to you because you have not the stamina to withstand the gaff—because your nerve power is lacking. Build up your system!

S. S. S. made of carefully selected and scientifically prepared and proportioned herbs and barks makes you fit! Get back that old time punch! When opportunity knocks be ready to answer the call!

piazza, and house. It might be said here, also, that it grows particularly well and successfully at the seashore, or lake side, and is frequently seen around the piazzas of summer cottages at the shore.

The graceful spirea is another familiar favorite for foundation planting. Like the hydrangea, it includes many varieties, some of which bloom in the spring, some in summer and still others in the fall.

Do not forget to include some of the shrubs appropriate for the winter in your order. Many of the deciduous shrubs are ornamental in their outlines or bear winter berries and thus add to the winter scene, and some of the evergreen shrubs should always be included. Do not forget the rhododendron, the laurel, or the holly, so that you will still have some dark green foliage to relieve the dreary bleakness of winter in your home.

BIBLE READING NOW SHOWING INCREASE

(By the Associated Press)
LONDON.—People are reading the Bible today more than ever before, says the Daily Telegraph, which quotes the figures of the British and Foreign Bible Society to support its assertion.

There was an increase in the number of Bibles published in the English and Welsh languages during the war, followed by a decrease after the close of hostilities. The year 1922 again showed an increase however, which points to a "revival of Bible reading in the homeland."

Significant of the world-wide influence of the Bible are the society's figures of their issues in all languages for the past century and a quarter. The figures are summaries of totals at intervals of 25 years and includes Bibles, Testaments and portions of the Scriptures:

1833— 536,841 1908—5,688,381
1858—1,602,187 1922—8,679,384

Take, too, the test of translation. Homer has been rendered into more than a score of foreign languages, and Shakespeare into nearly forty. Both together fall far short of the translations of the Bible, for the Gospel has been actually printed in more than 700 different forms of human speech, and the Bible Society, as their share of this work, has helped to spread the message in 558 languages and dialects.

BUDAPEST.—Tempted by the high rate of exchange for American money the counterfeiters in central Europe are concentrating their talents on the dollar. The Budapest police have discovered a wholesale scheme for the distribution of genuine two dollar notes which have been cleverly transformed into two hundred dollar notes. The press that produces this transformation is supposed to be in Warsaw. Counterfeits of this sort have been found in 16 different European towns.

"PYRO-FORM" CONTINUES TO BANISH PYORRHEA

Merits of New Preparation Attested to by People in All Walks of Life.

(Contains No Creosote)

Pyorrhea is destructive to health and to preserve good health it is absolutely necessary to destroy this insidious cause of disease. "Pyro-form" is guaranteed to accomplish this result—guaranteed to restore teeth to normal conditions and to rid the gums of poisonous pus. It is highly endorsed by dental chemists and surgeons as well as thousands of men and women in all walks of life. The price is $3 per carton.

Medical authorities claim that 80 percent of the people have Pyorrhea, although many of them are not aware of it because the disease causes little or no pain. In this way Pyorrhea is neglected until it is greatly advanced, and it becomes necessary to remove the teeth to rid the system of the poisonous pus. If you are in the 80 percent class, you should try "Pyro-form," as there is no risk on your part, the remedy being sold on a positive money-back guarantee. Manufactured by the Pyro-form Company, San Bernardino, California. You can obtain this preparation at

NEW ORE MINED IN MINNESOTA

Geologists Form Analysis of New Ore Mined in North State.

(By the Associated Press)

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 19.—Minnesota is producing a brand new iron ore, according to Prof. George M. Schwartz, of the department of geology, University of Minnesota. Three hundred tons a day of the new product is going to Detroit for use in the manufacture of a widely known automobile.

Magnetite iron bearing rock has been known to exist for many years in Northern Minnesota. Dr. Schwartz explained, but it has been impossible to call it an ore because it could not be smelted by any simple process. The manetic concentration process, introduced by an iron company on the Mesabi range in northern Minnesota, however, changes the rock into a true ore, capable of being smelted, and it is on this account that it is now considered a new ore.

This magnetite rock is found in huge beds at the east end of the Mesabi range and has limitless possibilities of development, according to geologists and miners at the Minnesota university. The concentrating machinery that is being used was invented some years ago by E. W. Davis, superintendent of the mines experiment station at the University of Minnesota.

"The magnetite ore being used at present," Dr. Schwartz declared, "is found on the part of the Mesabi range which lies east of the town of Mesaba. The pit of the Mesabi Iron Company is near Sulphur Siding, at a new town called Babbitt. This part of the range is usually known as the East Mesabi, and extends from the town of Mesaba to Birch Lake, a distance of 20 miles. It was in this area that the iron formation of Minnesota was first discovered, but on account of the absence of rich ores, it received little attention until recently."

AMERICAN TECHNICAL EXPERT TO INSTRUCT HAITIAN FARMER

(By the Associated Press)

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti.—Dr. George F. Freeman, recently of the staff of the Texas Agricultural College and Experiment Station has begun the formation of a technical bureau here, under the Department of Agriculture, to further the economic development of the island.

Dr. Freeman's mission is not only the vocational instruction, but also the professional education of the Haitian people along agricultural development lines.

Both the Haitian people and the foreign colonies regard the addition of this agricultural expert to the corps of American experts in the island as a significant contribution to Haiti's growing commercial activities.

BOOTBLACKS OF CORFU RIVAL NATIVE SHINERS

(By the Associated Press)

CORFU, Oct. 19.—The American shoe shine parlor manned by Greeks is the transplanting of a time-worn profession from their old country. Corfu is a city of 30,000 people but it has a shoe shiner for about every 300 inhabitants or about 100 shoe shiners. There are so many of them that a prospective customer is besieged with offers of "the best shine in town," and often, the competition is so keen that the successful polisher is dealt a stealthy blow as he kneels to perform his function.

All Corfu gets its shoes shined by the 100 professionals. Lines of them occupy the main squares of the city and men, women and children from every walk in life are lined up for the morning shine. The variety of shoes too is perplexing, but the Greek polisher goes ahead and gives the best that is in him. It is strange that here at the very beginning of the Near East, the best shine in Europe may be secured. In England and France, there is nothing like the brilliant American shine. But here, there is the perfect reproduction of the glittering American brand and one is forced to wonder if America imported it from the Greeks or the Greeks from America.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SINNER:—Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin.—James 4:17.

TO WHICH CLASS DO YOU BELONG?

(From Manufacturers Record)

Someone has recently said that "A pessimist is a man who in every difficulty sees an opportunity."

Not only does the pessimist see a difficulty but he is always trying to find ways to prove that a thing cannot be done. About one-half of the people of the world, perhaps three-fourths, given any task always find some way of thinking that it cannot be accomplished.

The only man who is worthy of success is the man who accomplishes the impossible.

The impossible, or that which other men say is impossible, is the opportunity of the optimist. The pessimist never does the supposedly impossible; the optimist thrives on doing what others say cannot be done.

Many men find more reasons for saying a thing cannot be done than they find for saying that it will be done.

"I can not" has destroyed more lives than almost any other thought expressed by mankind. Half the people who fail to achieve much for themselves or for others are the people who always think in terms of pessimism and can'ts. The only people who succeed are the people who in a spirit of optimism, sensible, intelligent optimism based on determination to achieve, say "It can be done."

The men, and boys and women who can "carry the message to Garcia" are the people who make life worth while for themselves and for the people with whom they are associated.

The man who carried the message to Garcia did not stop to tell President McKinley that Garcia was far in the interior of Cuba and that the lions of the Spanish army were guarding every road that led to him. He did not stop to ask how he should get to Cuba. McKinley told him to deliver a message to Garcia, he bowed, turned from the President and no one knew his plans or how he would work out the difficult task. But counting not the lions in the shape of a Spanish army, counting not the swamps through which he might have to pass nor the dangers from fevers, he found a way to deliver the message to Garcia. President McKinley had no time to tell him how to do the work, no time to refer him to this officer or that, no time to consider the question of difficulties. To the average man the commission would have been an impossibility the man to whom the task was committed found a way to do the impossible thing and his name has gone down in history as the "man who delivered the message to Garcia."

In every other walk of life the man who succeeds is the man who can deliver the message. When given a commission for any task the successful man or boy who has the right stuff in him doesn't waste time asking questions, doesn't come back to tell of how impossible it was, but he accepts the commission and delivers the message to Garcia.

The salesman who can find more reasons for not selling goods than he can find for selling them may make many excuses but excuses never created a prosperity from which to pay his salary.

Every man must ask himself, "Am I a pessimist in thought or act? Am I always ready to think in terms of pessimism or am I an optimist determined to conquer though the difficulties seem insurmountable?" The difference between the two is merely the question as to whether a man or a woman will make a success or a failure of life. It has been said that some people were born on the negative side of every question. These negatives who always find a way to criticize or oppose everything proposed and who are always imagining difficulties are the greatest handicap to the world's advancement.

If you are a pessimist, don't blame anybody else for your failure to succeed in life for you do not deserve to succeed until you change from the negative side of every question to the positive side of optimism and determination and unconquerable energy. Edgar A. Guest has rightly expressed it as follows:

"Somebody said it couldn't be done,
But he with a chuckle replied
That 'maybe it couldn't' but he'd be the one Who wouldn't say so 'till he'd tried.
So he buckled right in with the trace of a grin
On his face. If he worried he hid it.
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done and he did it."

Not many years ago the name of Dr. Frederick A. Cook was on every tongue. Wherever he went he was hailed as the man who had discovered the North Pole. He was in great demand as a lecturer and commanded fancy prices, everybody eager to hear his story, even though it later developed that most of it was pure fabrication. The same man is now occupying the defendant's chair in the federal court at Fort Worth where he faces charges of using the mails to defraud. That is a come-down we call it, from a world-wide fame to a fight to keep out of the penitentiary. In Cook's case, if charges are true, it was a matter of switching from one humbug to another. His claim as discoverer of the North Pole had been exploded as was his claim to making the ascent of Mt. McKinley and then the oil game drew him.

Adventures To Brave New Field of Discovery Where No White Man Has Visited

HONOLULU—A breath of romance—limpid lagoons—boiling through the ocean, with all sail set, at the speed of an average steamer—life among the natives in a far-off South Sea Isle—of the beginning of a 600-mile trip up a river on which many white men have set out, but none returned—is contained in a letter received here from Myrta N. Fay, commander of the "Narwhal Expedition," an adventurous group of men, who sailed their own small vessel out of San Francisco bay almost a year ago to cruise among the South Seas, drifting from port to port with whatever cargo might be picked up.

The miscellaneous cargo, including a large shipment of dynamite, that the Narwhal carried from San Francisco, was delivered safely to the letter, which was received by A. P. Taylor, Honolulu newspaperman and author.

The letter was dated "Latitude 15:54; longitude 180, July 27, 1923" and spent more than seven weeks reaching its destination.

"The 'Narwhal Expedition' is still on the map, or rather moving around on the map," it said. "Right now we are passing through the channel between the island of Thakombia and Vanua Levu of the Fiji group. We also are crossing the 180th meridian, where we jump a day."

"We had a wonderful time in the Samoan islands. I think I saw as much of them as any white man has ever seen. While at Upolo, I went on a trip with the New Zealand governor and visited native villages along the shores. We were feted in each village. We lived in their grass huts and I was able to get pictures of some of their celebrations that have never been photographed before. I stayed in Apia several weeks and went to Pago Pago where I made two trips—one to the Manua group where we lived with the natives for a week. The Samoans on these islands appear to be far ahead of the others, because the white man very rarely gets to Manua.

"Our next stay will be Noumea. We will spend a week or two there getting the final touches for the real adventure. For we intend to go from there to New Guinea where we hope to ascend the Fly river for about 600 miles. We realize that we are taking a long chance, as five expeditions have gone up this river, and not a man has returned from them. We hope to benefit by their mistakes. We have a very fast whale boat and we are guarding ourselves against the diseases that play havoc with the white man in these countries and we will always be careful. About the time this letter reaches you we will be starting up the river and I feel sure, with the precautions that we are taking, that we will get through safely."

"These South Seas are surely the place for a fellow to get Romance under his skin. It seems to be a sort of disease that every one gets down here. This old sailing vessel of ours only adds to that romantic feeling that steals over us. Right now we are boiling along as fast as the average steamer goes, all sail is set, and every time a gust of wind hits us, the old ship gives a graceful swoop that sort of reminds me of a racehorse."

"The enthusiasm that prompted us to go on this trip has only been intensified by the wonderful experience we are getting."

Fay said that the Narwhal expected to be in Honolulu on its return trip to the mainland in seven or eight months.

SKYWARD

(Tulsa Tribune)

An office building 80 stories high will be erected on the site of the famous Madison Square Garden in New York City.

The Woolworth building is only 792 feet. The new building that will eclipse it will rise toward the sky 1100 feet, which is over a fifth of a mile.

This will make it the highest man-made structure in the world, 100 feet taller than the Eiffel Tower in Paris. We wonder what the builders of the Tower of Babel would say of it. They'd probably gape.

The skyscraper, an American creation, is the result of the attempt to escape from high land values and the tribute or toll that has to be paid to them.

Land being too costly, the buildings bulge into the air instead of spreading over a large territory.

All this is a result of congestion of population, the swarming instinct that began when men banded together for common defense against wild beasts and savage rival tribes, and which has reached its worst in our generation.

An 80-story building wonderful? Well, it's a wonderful monument to our submission to a frightful economic problem—land ownership.

The airplane probably will relieve the situation by enabling men to live hundreds of miles out in the country, quickly flying to and from work, with cities abandoned except as centers of trading and recreation.

To build an 80-story building solidly and equip it with elevator and other service, requires almost phenomenal skill and intelligence. The best brains today are in industry not the arts or professions.

WIDE CUBAN DOORS SOLVE QUESTION OF KEEPING CARS

(By the Associated Press)

HAVANA.—There are many strange sights for the tourist to see in Havana, but perhaps one of the most surprising comes when he visits a Cuban home and sees the family automobile sitting in the front hallway.

In all of downtown Havana, with its population of some 400,000 space is at a premium. Streets are narrow and houses are joined together and are flush with the sidewalk. When the automobile came along many families who could afford one did not feel able to pay garage rent or did not care to have their machine kept blocks or even miles away. Practically all of the front entrances have wide double doors and so the cars found parking space indoors usually near the staircase. They can be seen in scores of homes but the oil cans, extra tires and greasy cloths usually found in an American garage are tucked away out of sight.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost.

Don't Stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

MODART CORSETS

Like All Fine Things

To say that "there is no other corset just like the Modart" implies much—to wear one proves much more. Like all fine things, the difference is very subtle; a fineness of design, a little more ease here, a flattened line there—qualities that women desire most and find in the Modart.

Our corset section has a large selection of latest Modart models. Lightly boned, giving that greater measure of style, freedom and bracing snugness, the Modart is designed to fit as a corset should at every point.

Before you decide on your fall wardrobe come to our corset section and have a trial fitting. Then you will know how perfectly the Modart fits every figure. You will know too why it is the favorite corset among more than a million women wearers.

Y. M. C. A. CONSIDERS AMENDMENT TO ACTIVE MEMBERSHIP

CLEVELAND, Oct. 19.—A proposed amendment to the constitution which would eliminate church membership as a qualification for active membership in the Y. M. C. A. was under consideration today by a committee appointed at yesterday's session of the constitutional convention.

At present only those who are in good standing in the evangelical churches are admitted to active membership. Property interests involved make the adoption of the constitution difficult.

FRANCE PROUD OF TENNIS DEVELOPMENT RECENT

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS.—There were 18,720 players entered and 14,123 actually took part in the regular tennis tournaments organized throughout France by the French Tennis Federation during the season just closed. Several promising youngsters were uncovered who, with a few years more practice, may develop to Davis Cup timber.

The French are very proud of the development of tennis in France of recent years. It is pointed out that for the Davis Cup matches in 1921, 19122 and 1923, they have put on the courts an entirely different team each year.

It is a common saying in France that if the Davis Cup matches were played six men to a side, French tennis would have a chance.

"WORSE THAN PAIN"

Louisiana Lady Says She Has "Never Found Anything Better Than Cardui for a Run-Down Condition."

Morgan City, La.—"It would be hard for me to tell how much benefit I have derived from the use of Cardui," said Mrs. I. G. Bowman, of 1319 Front Street, this city.

"I was so run-down in health I could hardly go. I was thin. I had no appetite. Could not rest or sleep well. I was so weak, and so very nervous, I was no pleasure to myself.

"I suffered some pain, but the worst of my trouble was from being so weak and easy to get tired and out of heart.

"This nervous condition was worse than pain.

"Some one told me of Cardui, and I decided to use it.

"After using a few bottles, I regained my strength. I wasn't so nervous, and began to eat and sleep, and grew stronger and was soon well.

"I have never found anything better for a run-down condition."

If you suffer as this Louisiana lady did, you, too, should find Cardui helpful for your troubles.

DREAD ALPS COLLECT HEAVY DEATHS TOLL

(By the Associated Press)

GENEVA.—The Alps take a steady toll of human life. Every summer mountain climbers come to Switzerland to scale its peaks, and every summer sees a number of tragic fatalities. Many bodies never are recovered, for the devoted mountain climber often goes out alone to find his last resting place deep in an ice crevasse or at the remote base of a precipice. Accidents have been unusually numerous this year.

Recently when a Swiss bank clerk named Goetsch, noted as a good climber, failed to return, searchers saw his body at the foot of a cliff. A rescue party, led by a priest with 450 feet of rope, finally made the descent after 12 hours of dangerous work. They found beside the body a note saying: "Kindly bury me here."

The little funeral party rolled boulders and blocks of ice so as to form a mound over the man, they placed an ice-axe at his head as a cross, and the priest read the burial service.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Now Father Knows as Much as He Did Before

RIOTING FEARED IN BENGAL NOW

Officials Sound Out Note of Warning to Bring Order in Again.

CALCUTTA, Oct. 19.—In proroguing the Bengal Legislative Council, Lord Lytton, the Governor, voiced a note of anxiety and warning regarding the recent recrudescence of violent crime in Calcutta and other parts of the province. These outbreaks are attributed to the work of secret revolutionary societies, having as one of their aims the assassination of government officials.

"The crimes of violence" which have in the last few months deeply shocked the public of Calcutta have been generally assumed to have been the acts of ordinary criminals. The latest murder in the post office at Sankaritolla and the trial and conviction of one of the gang who committed the murder has revealed to the public the workings of organized revolutionary societies of which Bengal has had such an unhappy experience in the past. The revival of a menace, which many will remember as a hideous nightmare, and which everyone had hoped had gone forever, has created a situation in which the government will require, to an exceptional degree, the support of the public.

"The contaminating influence of these gangs of fanatical idealists who adopt terrorism through robbery and assassination as their weapon, is a danger to the younger generation from which no family can feel altogether immune.

A week ago the latest victim of this sinister conspiracy told in the dock the story of how he was sought out by those whom he acknowledged as his leaders and ordered to join with others in a robbery which led to the murder of a perfectly innocent man. It is the impressionable youth of Bengal who are seduced and sacrificed by the insane organization. I appeal to all those who remember the dark days through which Bengal passed from 1912 to 1916, to all those who have sons of their own to protect, to rally to the support of the government and to help us stamp out this disease before it grows to dimensions which will make it difficult to cope with.

"This is no case of mere political opposition, or criticism of the government, or seditious propaganda. It is a conspiracy of dangerous, fanatical criminals among whom violence is an acknowledged creed and terrorism a deliberate policy, whose agents are trained in robbery and murder, whose victims are selected without motive or discrimination, and who constitute a danger to every household in the country. I have every confidence that when this is realized the whole educated opinion of Bengal will demand that vigorous and effective measures shall be taken to exterminate the evil."

ALABAMA FOLKS VIEW "SCARS OF JEALOUSY"

To test the fidelity of the filming of typical Alabama scenes in the latest Thomas H. Ince production, "Scars of Jealousy," the producer recently gave a special showing of the film to a group of native Alabamians, who were visiting Southern California.

The picture depicts scenes on the broad plantation lands and hill country of Alabama, and Mr. Ince prided himself on the accuracy with which the Alabama "atmosphere" had been transplanted to the screen. The visitors liked the picture immensely, and as a result of their suggestions many effective Alabama "local color touches" were added to the finished production, which is now playing at the McSwain theatre.

Gives Time In Flowers For Needy

(By the Associated Press)

MUSKOGON, Mich., Oct. 19.—Believing that the greatest service any person can give to his fellow man is that of spreading cheer and happiness, A. H. Allen, the largest producer of gladioli in western Michigan, has consecrated his life to the raising of flowers for free distribution to hospitals, charitable institutions and public buildings in order that he may extend his message of human kindness to all who look upon his offerings.

About 15 years ago Mr. Allen became imbued with the idea of serving humanity. Always a lover of flowers, he decided to use them as his medium for showing his love for others.

The Allen farm has 11 acres devoted to the culture of gladioli.
During the flowering season the tract is a riot of every color and color combination conceivable. In all there are 97 varieties of this popular flower, each with its distinctive coloring and its own characteristics.

Mr. Allen, during the flowering season, comes down town each day with a supply of blossoms, makes his rounds, and leaves bouquets at the hospitals and in other places where he believes they will be appreciated.

"The sight of flowers is the great est tonic for persons who are ill or discouraged that the world ever has produced," Mr. Allen said. "I have proof that flowers do speak a language of gladness. Every morning when I come into Muskogon with an armful of flowers strangers speak to me on the street. After I have delivered the blossoms and am empty handed no one pays any attention to me. It was the flowers that the strangers spoke to before."

On the Allen farm this year are 120,000 gladioli bulbs in blossom.
The grower is at work on several new varieties, several years being required to develop a new species.

Gruesome Tragedy Of Japanese Earthquake Disaster Recited

By Former Resident Of Ada

While the appalling disaster of the earthquake which wrecked Tokio and Yokohama and snatched thousands of lives from the island kingdom has been related in detail by press dispatches, no more vivid report could have been constructed than in the letter received here by Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Cullins from their son, T. O. Jr., a lieutenant in the Navy, now assigned to Asiatic waters, who was in Japanese waters at the time of the terrible quake.

Lieutenant Cullins, who was reared in Ada, sends in the following report of the earthquake disaster:

Yokohama, Japan, Sept. 7, 1923

Dear Mother and Dad, I suppose you want a little information on the disaster. It is the most horrifying thing that I have ever seen. And I hope that I never see such a sight again.

Very few Americans except the consul and his staff were killed, of the latter all except one were instantly killed. He is now on one of the ships and is completely out of his mind. The tremendous loss of life has been with the natives. It is reported that looting and killing is very prevalent ashore. Several dead bodies have been drifting by in the few hours that we have been here and even now after three days one can stand on deck and count at least a dozen fires raging ashore. The water is muddy and everything has the aspect of death and disaster.

Several times we have endeavored to help the Japs but they refused to discuss matters with us. This afternoon when our destroyer left on the duty assigned them they were immediately followed by Jap destroyers and even now they play their searchlights on us as if they thought we were endeavoring to do something wrong to them.

I have been talking to some people who were in it and have lost everything and have been doing a lot of digging around ashore. The Japs would take out all Japs and if they ran across a white person they would only cast him aside to lay there and suffer and perhaps to die. One merchant skipper escaped down to the waters edge. The flames were pushing him and he decided to jump into the water seeing several Japs in boats and thought that they would certainly pick him up. He swam to a dozen different boats and they utterly ignored him and would not pick him up and in every case they would row away from him. He was finally rescued by a French boat. Another Jap ship went down to a little town to get some sort of Prince. There were about 180 whites there and they were stranded without food and water. This Jap ship took the Prince but would not offer any assistance to the whites at all. There are numerous cases of this kind of action on their part.

There is a British cruiser up from Shanghai and a French cruiser here and their skippers have called and placed their men and services at our disposal and are anxious to help in any way possible. It shows the difference in the peoples.

Communications Demoralized

I just wonder what kind of news you are getting in the papers. You certainly can't be getting the right dope as all means of communications are destroyed. I imagine they are pasting it on heavy as the papers usually do in such cases. You are perhaps getting the right dope now as we are sending the straight dope out every night by radio to the International News Service. The cables are all broken and all railways are ruined. All telegraphic means of communication are wrecked for hundreds of miles around. We have to send by radio to Kobe where we have a destroyer stationed to relay all radio messages and they send to Manila where it is then sent by wire. It is the general assumption I understand that there was a big tidal wave which did most of the damage. This is not the case as there was no tidal wave whatsoever. Every thing was caused by the earthquake and fire. The facts as I shall try to give them according to my notes were related to me by responsible people, captains of merchant ships lying here at the time of the event, attaches, American business men and tourists on the various passenger ships.

The "Empress of Australia" a large British passenger ship was scheduled to sail for Shanghai at noon Saturday. Hundreds of people were at the dock watching her shove off. They were all waving farewell, bands were playing, etc., when at three minutes of twelve the dock suddenly shook very violently and the major portion of it sank below the water. Within a matter of one minute, half of the houses in Yokohama, a city of about 400,000 were flat on the ground. There were nine violent quakes to begin with and they lasted throughout the day. Official reports from the Navy Department at Washington have data to the effect that there have been some 17,000 earthquakes in the last 17 years here. There are on the average three a day and even now we can feel slight tremors every day. Scores were drowned immediately. Within five minutes the water was covered with oil from bursting oil tanks and huge tanks were on fire. Fire started up in the city at this time. To increase the horror a typhoon sprang up with a gale of 60 miles an hour and from the land out to sea carrying the flames thru the main district which was by this time down. Imagine such a vast area of land and water on fire. It was all the ships that were anchored here could do to keep from burning. As it was one American ship had a big hole torn in her from the force of the quake and she is now resting on the bottom. The "Empress" to add to her troubles had her propellers fouled with the fallen dock and all hands worked desperately to free her. Finally she was freed and she went out in the harbor and anchored. The captain himself told me that he had never in all his life seen anything so terrible. The flames roared hundreds of feet into the air. Within less than an hour one hundred thousand people were killed in Yokohama alone. Imagine one fourth of the city being dead in such a short time. It is ghastly to think of it. The final estimate of the dead here is three hundred thousand and fifty thousand in Tokyo. There are still places that have not been dug into yet and it is known that there are a number of dead there but it is not known how many. The merchant skipper I was talking to lives here and his home was destroyed. His daughter was pinned down by a beam when the house fell in and he broke three saws trying to get her out and finally he had to get an axe and cut the beam. He finally succeeded in getting her out and just in time as the fire had already hit his house. I could relate other tales but this gives you a fair idea of it.

Deplorable Conditions Seen

I went into the inner harbor this morning and I hope I never go again. The sights I saw were terrible. It is one mass of floating debris. The buildings are all crumpled up to a pulp and buried to the ground. The air is thick with smoke and is filled with a sickening odor of decayed matter. There are numerous dead bodies floating around in all sorts of distorted shapes all beyond recognition. There are hundreds ashore lying on the ground that have not yet been done away with. They are piling them in heaps and burning them. There was one pile that contained some eight hundred bodies and those that are still lying around are decaying and setting forth an awful smell. There are parts of bodies here and there and parts to have been burned off and leaving the rest of the body exposed to the sun and flies. Just picture it all dear folks and it's ghastly. There was one little court that had about a thousand people huddled in it to protect themselves from the flames. They were all cremated in this spot. There are all parts of the body lying about from ashes to the entire body. It makes me sick to tell about it.

There are thousands of Japs and Chinese down by the water's edge waiting to be sent out to some of the ships. They have only the clothes on their backs and some of them do not have any clothes. Much looting is going on and pawing over any valuable that they can find. Stretchers have been exhausted, all food, water and medical supplies have been exhausted. Food and water is now coming in to them and they are fairly safe in that direction. The Japs are so stricken and crazy that they are killing the Chinese and the Koreans whom they believe to have caused the fires. There are Jap soldiers here now and this is pretty well in hand.

The "Empress" is doing wonderful work. She has already handled some 14,000 refugees of all nationalities and is taking all that she can possibly hold and provide for. The President Jefferson, an American passenger ship, left here yesterday with a ship load of refugees for Seattle. Two more American ships are due in here in the next three days and we are going to transfer all the tourists from on to the other and send them all down to Kobe and keep the other ship here as a station ship.

Destitution in Inland

Inland there is quite a lot of destitution and suffering also. We sent an armed force up in the mountains with food and water to get several families and brought them down. The Smith-Thompson went down to Kamakuri and rescued the 185 whites that were stranded there. The Whipple went up to Tokyo and brought down some hundred whites. Most all the Americans are accounted for but there are some hundred that are missing in Yokohama. It is estimated that in all only one hundred Americans have been killed. Only one white person was killed in Tokyo and that was a Russian. The Americans that were killed were killed here in Yokohama.

The American ambassador in Tokyo has called for food supplies and we are going up tomorrow morning with some twenty-five hundred tons of supplies. When I get up there I will tell you all about the damage and sights up there. I understand that the bay is full of bodies so I imagine that it will be a nice trip up.

Do not worry about me at all because I am perfectly safe. We are anchored out and there is no danger of a quake getting us if we did have another one. The Japs have a respect for the foreign uniform and particularly the American. So we are alright.

We have been kept pretty busy all day and most of the time all night and I am awfully tired. It is something new and most interesting even if it is a most terrible disaster.

I do not know just how long we will be up here. We will perhaps be able to keep our Shanghai trip even if we do miss the Hankow trip up the river.

Perhaps the folks would be interested in this letter so show it to them as it is too much to write all his to each of them and I haven't the time. We are on the go from five a. m. to two a. m. nearly every day.

If you want to you can give some of this to the News but please do leave out the parts I have put in parenthesis.

It will be some three weeks before you receive this and I suppose the news will be stale by then but any way this news is from one who is on the scene and knows what is going on. All reports that you get are sugared over.

Write me whenever you can. I will keep you posted on all the dope of his part of the world. Love to all the folks. Love. T. O.

Tokyo, Japan,

Sept. 8, 1923.

Dear Mother and Dad, We arrived in Tokyo this morning. It is only a short distance from Yokohama and we made it in a very short while. I did not get ashore as none of us are allowed to go ashore. But what I tell you is from those who were in the disaster and are relating their actual experiences. We brought back with us a lot of refugees who were to be assigned to the "Empress" for further transportation to Kobe. I was talking with a doctor and his story of the affair is about as follows:

The quake started without a warning and one quake followed another and the oscillations of the earth were sickening. I was told that the oscillations were sometimes as high as a foot. The observatory in Tokyo afterwards reported that it was the worst in seventy years. Everything was desolation and ruin within the space of a few seconds. There were fires everywhere and the great skyscrapers in flames, the crash of falling walls, explosions of gas and oil tanks and the panic stricken people furnished a sight which cannot be described. Two thirds of Tokyo has been burned down and it is the very best part of the city. Yokohama is a pile of ashes.

One of the women, the wife of the doctor, saw ten thousand bodies in one field covered with wood and kerosene and were being burned. Her experiences have been one nightmare. In one place a Jap woman was pinned to the ruins of her house, her hand having been caught. She begged her husband to cut off her hand and enable her to get out. The flames came too quickly and she burned to death while he frantically fled to a place of safety.

In the harbor there were numerous bodies floating about in every shape possible. I became sick with the sight and the awful odor of decayed matter and burning bodies.

We are leaving here today and are going back to Yokohama to take the refugees and put them aboard the "Empress".

I have to sketch these letters off rather hurriedly as we are awfully busy. I stopped for awhile and we are now back in Yokohama. The "Empress" sails tonight for Kobe. The "President Wilson" and "President Pierce" are due in tomorrow and we are going to hold the Wilson over as station ship and send the rest of the passengers to Kobe on the President McKinley.

The Pierce is sailing tomorrow evening for the States and our States mail closed tonight. I want you to get this as soon as possible. Give my love to all the folks and write to us often. Don't worry about me as I am perfectly safe and enjoying myself even though this is a rather ghastly sight.

Lots of love

Warships Visit Sweden.
(By the Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM—Sweden has been host to more naval visitors from foreign countries during six weeks this summer than ever before with this short a period, and the people look on these courteous attentions as a sign of growing interest in the country's trade and political position in the north of Europe.

Ten countries in all have sent war vessels to Sweden, and ten different ports, including Stockholm, Gothenburg, and Malmo, have been visited. The U. S. cruiser Pittsburgh has just left Stockholm, where its officers participated in the memorial services for the late President Harding. The U. S. battleship North Dakota also was in Swedish waters this summer.

—and Easier to Iron With—

EVERY Housewife takes great pride in the dainty, fresh appearance of her linens.

It is often difficult to get good results with ordinary starch that forms a sticky jelly when it cools. For this pasty starch clots and smears when you try to iron clothes.

All this is now overcome with Linit, the remarkable new starch discovery.

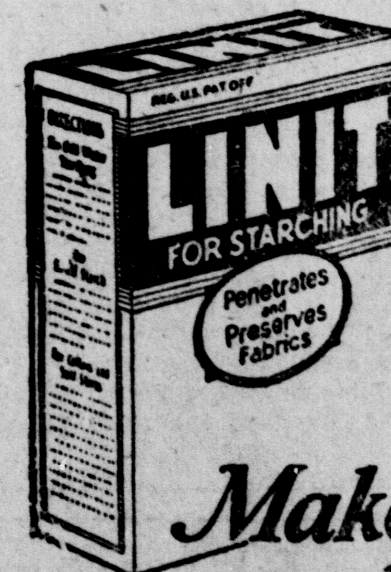

Linit is a scientific starch—distinctly different from ordinary, old-fashioned starches. Linit gives that soft, cool, pliable finish to all fabrics, making even cotton goods look and feel like expensive linen.

Linit makes a THIN, "MILKY" MIXTURE, free-running like water, which is quickly absorbed by the fabric, thus saving the time and labor of "smearing on", which was customary with the old-fashioned starches. The Linit mixture does not present the stiff, jelly-like appearance of ordinary starch. This is why you will find it easier to iron with Linit.

DISSOLUTION OF ENTENTE EVERTED THRU AGREEMENT

Poincare Statement Explained as not Seeking Further Encroachment.

CRISIS NOW PAST

Security of European Peace Left to Final Action of French Court.

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS, Nov. 19.—An agreement in principle was reached by the representatives of the allies assembled in council of ambassadors here today and a break between France and Great Britain on the question of the attitude to be adopted towards Germany was averted at least temporarily. It was announced that the ambassadors had agreed in principle to the measures to be taken towards resumption of allied military control in Germany. The agreement was subject to the approval of the French and Belgian cabinets at meetings to be held early this afternoon.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—France's determination to continue the "occupation" until the treaty of Versailles has been executed and protection assured as expressed by Premier Poincare in a speech at Neuilly yesterday applies only to the Rhineland and bridgeheads, according to an official foreign office statement issued through the Havas agency today. The statement said that the decision concerning the Ruhr would be dependent upon agreement with Belgium.

The statement said: "Certain newspapers seem not to have understood the exact sense of the words of the premiers' announcement yesterday in an address at Neuilly when he declared: not to evacuate the territories occupied by signatories of the treaty until all clauses of the treaty of Versailles have been completely executed."

"These words concerned occupied territories on the left bank of the Rhine and bridge heads. It goes without saying that they could not apply to the Ruhr concerning which no decision could be reached without previous accord between France and Belgium."

Most of the Paris newspapers merely emphasized the premier's pronouncement by printing his remarks on this subject in italics or black face type. The Matin, however, particularly mentioned the Ruhr in explaining the significance of the French determination to use the occupation as a guaranty for protection as well as payment.

Creamery Shipment to be New Phase of Local Utilities Co.

The Southern Ice and Utilities company has decided to try a new experiment in the cream business, buying cream at all points in this trade territory, concentrate it at Ada and ship to its creamery at Texarkana, according to Roy Givens, manager of the Ada plant.

Mr. Givens states that the chief object is to learn more of the volume of cream shipped from this part of the state and that if it is found that there is enough to support a creamery, the company will go ahead with its long contemplated plan of establishing a creamery in connection with the ice and ice cream factory at Ada.

The road from Ada is in fair condition, barring a few short stretches, but these stretches are said to be quite difficult.

Many of the men holding acreage in that territory are now staying in Ada and finding it difficult to get to the well and back.

Prisoner Escapes By Hiding Under Auto Motor Hood

(By the Associated Press)

McALESTER, Nov. 19.—Hidden under the hood of a prison motor truck which delivered bread outside the prison walls of the penitentiary, Warren Mankins, five year term prisoner from Oklahoma county, made his escape this morning.

When the car stopped at a railroad station, Mankins sprang out, under the eyes of the surprised driver and has not been located.

In 1918, while serving a previous sentence, Mankins mounted the walls armed with a wooden gun and attempted to scale the outer wall but was captured.

LACK OF FUNDS MAY HIT COURT

District Court Fund Nearing Exhaustion With Busy Year of Sessions.

All civil and criminal cases on docket for trial in district court may be forced to wait until July 1, when the year's financial budget is allotted before their disposal is arranged, it was stated in official circles today.

The low ebb of funds may force district court to suspend all scheduled sessions during the remainder of the year and the period of next year until July 1, it was stated today.

The possible postponement of criminal session of district court scheduled for December until July came with the announcement that all funds would be dependent on the cost of trial of the Roddie murder case at Tecumseh at a near date.

Should the case be disposed of with a small cost, a criminal session of district court may be heard early in January but a larger cost would make it impossible for the hearing of the criminal docket, according to L. E. Franklin, court clerk.

$1,200 Needed in Roddie Case.
Court Clerk Franklin stated that approximately $1,200 would be set aside for the disposal of the Roddie case, which has been passed from one session to another for a number of years. Franklin estimated that this amount would be a maximum allotment for the financing of the case, since Pontotoc county bears the entire expense of the trial. Franklin stated that allotment of $1,200 for the trial of the Roddie case would leave a balance of approximately $800 in the district court fund, which is deemed insufficient to start a criminal session of district court.

The deficit in the court fund is due to increased court costs for the fiscal year and a decrease in the estimate, granted the court clerk for the expenses of court during the year. Court Clerk Franklin stated that he did not file claims for office fixtures expense but sought a fund sufficient for the maintenance of the courts or the term but the amount apportioned by the commissioners was less than the year previous.

Grand jury investigations and an added expense from the Oklahoma civil suit brought here aided in draining the court treasury and rendered the amount to less than actually needed, according to Franklin.

Should the expense of the Roddie case prove less than estimated other funds may be converted to the court fund and a criminal session of district court be possible in January, according to Franklin.

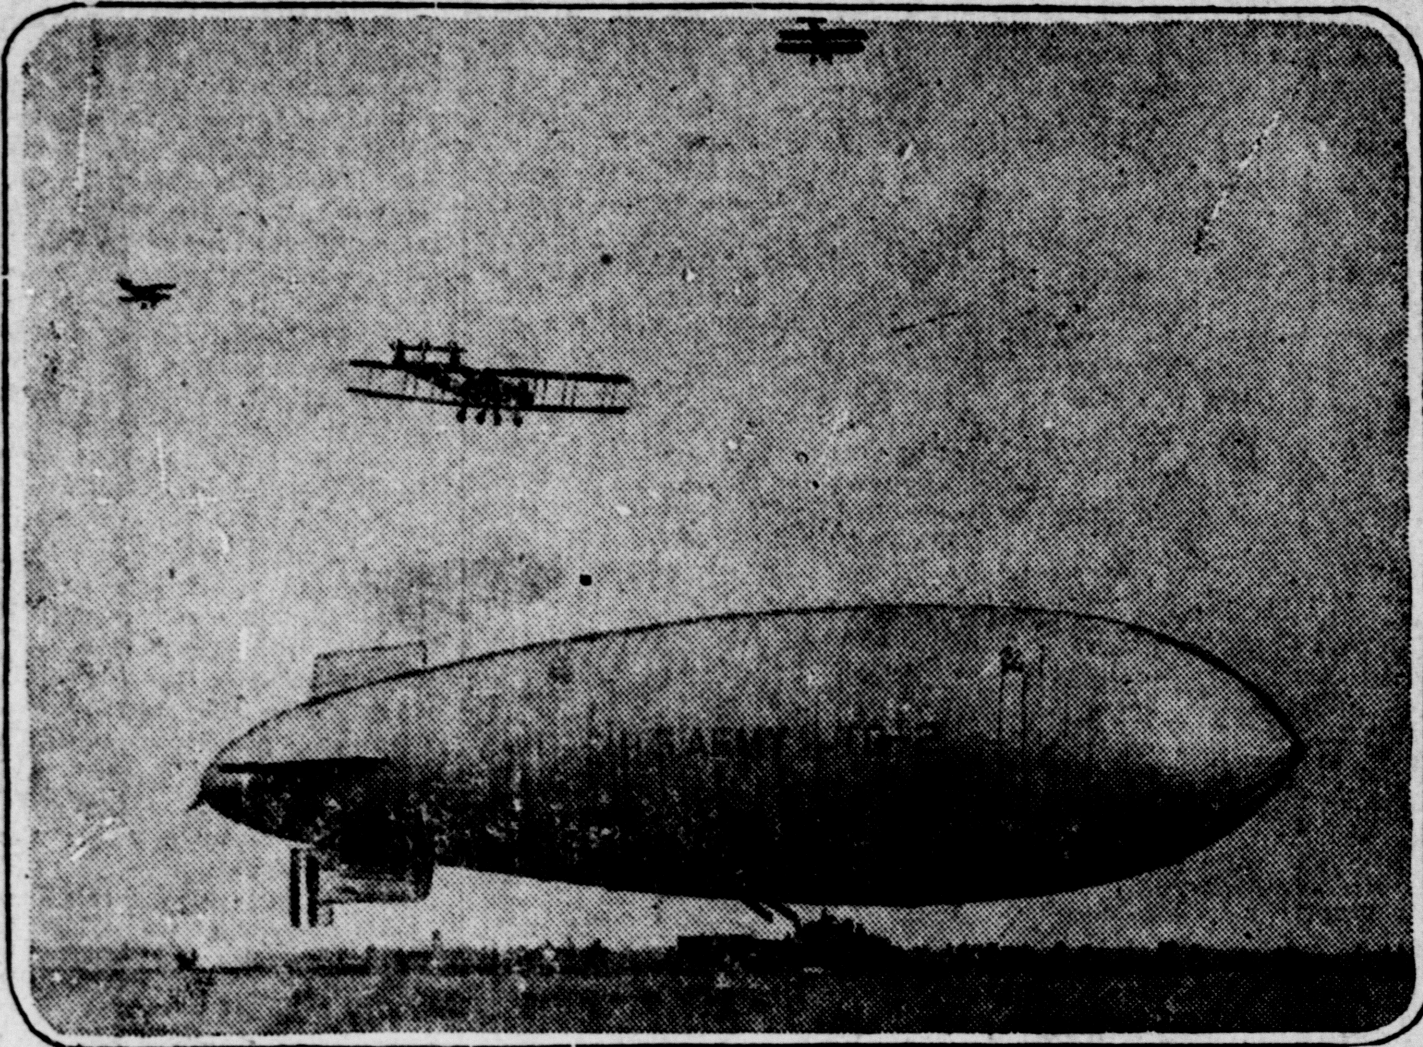

Three Escape Jail at Purcell After Sawing Away Bars

(By the Associated Press)

PURCELL, Nov. 19.—After sawing their way through the bars three prisoners escaped from the McClain county jail here last night. It was reported by county authorities this morning. Descriptions of the men have been sent to the police in Oklahoma City and other places in an effort to apprehend them.

Those escaping were Travis McClure, a negro arrested on a mail robbery charge, John Dye wanted in Grant county on a felony charge, and an Indian whose name was not given, who was held in connection with a Pawhuska bank robbery. McClure is believed to have been wounded by deputies who fired on the escaping prisoners.

IVEY TO APPEAR IN WORKOUT BEFORE FIGHT

Battling Ivey of Wilson, who will face Archie Cooper in the third encounter of his career Wednesday night at the Convention Hall, arrived in Ada Sunday and will appear in a public workout this afternoon, according to his manager, Andy Thomas, who accompanied him here.

Ivey returned to Allen Sunday afternoon but was scheduled to be in Ada this afternoon for his workout and remain here until his fight Wednesday night.

Thomas declares that his gladiator is in perfect condition and will be in a fit shape for his engagement with Cooper Wednesday night.

A. R. Dixon, Cooper's manager, declared that Cooper would be in his best trim Wednesday night. Dixon accompanied Claude Sparks to Madill, where Sparks meets sailor Daniels there tonight in a ten-round match.

Ada Sunday School Class Again Bested by Elk City Class

The First Christian church men's Bible class again fell under the attendance mark set by the men's Bible class of the First Christian church of Elk City Sunday, according to the comparison of reports from the two classes, which are waging a trophy contest for a six-week period.

The class of Ada registered a total of 94 in attendance while the Elk City class showed an attendance of 117.

This is the second Sunday the Elk City class has recorded a larger attendance than the Ada class.

Members of the class are preparing a city-wide campaign to bring the attendance above a record mark for next Sunday.

Few Counties Show Cotton Yield Gain Over Past Season

The report of the census bureau on cotton ginned up to November 1 indicates that Bryan county is the first in the state this year in cotton crop. Its figures for November were 18,988 as compared with 13,472 the same date of 1922. Carter county also showed an increase, having ginned 6,798 as compared with 5,381 the year previous. Love reports 7,292. All others show a heavy falling off.

Pontotoc is just about an average county this year with 4,491, as compared with 9,907 November 1, 1922.

The state figures are placed at 295,840 as compared with 540,415 for 1922.

Exchange Rate Raised

Prisoner Hands Sheriff Gun on Way to Prison

(By the Associated Press)

McALESTER, Nov. 19.—While Sheriff Harry Campbell of Craig county waited at a corner here with four deputies and seven prisoners for a street car to take them to the state penitentiary, Richard A. Birks, bank robber and murderer, pulled a revolver from his pocket and handed it to the sheriff.

"I see I can't win; here's my gun," the prisoner said to the astounded sheriff.

A number of cartridges were found in a sack tied around his neck.

Birks was convicted of the killing of Frank Pitts in the robbery of the First State bank of Ketchum in August. At that time he was an escaped convict, having been sentenced to serve a term for a previous bank robbery.

SPECIAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEET HERE

There will be a special meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday morning at 9:30. This is an important notice and Secretary Warner urges every director to be present.

There will not be a monthly luncheon this month as formerly, but there will be a grand get-together meeting the second week in December. This is the event of the regular election of new directors. Some out of town speakers will be on the job and an enthusiastic reception and meeting is expected.

The plans for the annual election are now being laid. The primary will be held the latter part of this month, and the general election in December. Seven of the present fourteen directors will go out and seven others will take their places. The old directors are not subject to re-election according to the constitution and by-laws.

COTTON SHOWING DECIDED INCREASE ON TRADE BUYING

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Cotton made a new high price record for the season today on renewed trade buying and rebuying. The recent sellers were evidently influenced by the better political news from Europe and the rise in foreign exchange.

December advanced to 34.75 and May to 34.70, or 60 to 66 points above Saturday's closing quotations. Contracts for next August, in which there has been interest, sold up to 31.50, or 150 points above the closing price of last week.

About 1,024 languages and dialects are spoken in America.

BOOZE CONSUMERS IN EXCESS IN CITY JAIL

As Christmas holidays swing into mellow form, the stills of Pontotoc begin dripping out their festive contents for the consumption of pre-season revelers, which swells the list of police court visitors, according to Mayor W. H. Fisher.

On the heels of increased consumption of festive county-made booze, the local law enforcement departments were preparing to clamp down the lid on late parties with refreshments that leave headaches in their wake.

The activities of the police officers during the past month have included a gradual increase of the list of law violators on the sudden complaint of drunkenness.

The sudden change in the liquor consumption capacity of Ada, came after a summer and fall of comparative bandonment of the drinking habit.

Two drunks stretched and yawned for the full count in police court this morning while three others detained, were fined for consorting and whipping wives.

The number of drunks fined last week mounted to the highest peak for the year.

Typhoon on Rampage Over Island Group; Much Damage Done

(By the Associated Press)

MANILA, Nov. 19.—A typhoon from the Pacific ocean swept over Luzon and Visayas islands. Rail and telegraphic communication have been entirely suspended. Manila is partially under water as a result of a torrential downpour and boats have replaced motor cars on several of the streets. The storm also caused considerable damage to crops.

Rainfall during the last 48 hours has totaled more than 16 inches. The down pour was accompanied by a high wind which had partially abated early today.

Telegraph wires were torn down by wind and rain and roads washed out in many sections of the islands.

A number of ships which were scheduled to sail were kept in port by the storm.

Wacker Sells His Interest in Ada; Goes to California

H. W. Wacker has sold his interest in Wacker's Variety Store to G. F. Wacker of Paula Valley. The latter will continue the business here as well as the other stores owned by this concern. H. W. Wacker, after the first of the year, will go to California, where he will engage in a like business.

Mr. Wacker has been a resident of Ada for several years and has built up a profitable business. He has wanted to go to California for a long time, however, and is selling out to carry out his desires.

G. F. Wacker will be in Ada off and on and may move here.

SWELL TREASURY IN TAX PURCHASE

Purchase of Confiscated Property Brings Fund to Treasury.

Between $25,000 and $30,000 poured into the county treasury during the past two months from purchasers of property confiscated from delinquent taxpayers, who failed to meet their taxable obligations before the sheriff tacked his notice on real estate property in the county.

Many certificates have been redeemed by former property owners since the county officers took over the property rights on failure to pay taxes, and money refunded to purchasers.

The former owner is required, according to law, to redeem the property within two years after it is purchased on bid else all claims on the property is released by the former owner in favor of the purchaser.

Individuals, corporations and real estate companies have been the principal purchasers of confiscated real estate property, it was learned at the county treasurer's office.

The activities of purchasers of delinquent property and the redemption steps taken by property owners have kept employees of the county treasurer's office busy during the past two weeks.

The collections from delinquent tax payers through the sheriff's office is reported slow, with prospect of more activity during the latter part of the year.

Appeal Made to Kansas Governor to Protect Agent

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 19.—A telegram stating that a circulator for "Jack Walton's Paper," a political argument sheet issued by Gov. J. C. Walton, had been "driven out" of Coffeyville, Kan., after being "threatened with jail by the Ku Klux Klan" was sent today to Gov. Jonathan Davis of Kansas by H. A. Tucker, editor of the paper.

The telegram asserted that Clarence Julian, the circulator, had been required to obtain a license to circulate the paper and that the alleged threat was made after the license had been purchased. No names were mentioned in connection with the reported threat.

Clarke is Granted Delay in Hearing in Mann Act Case

(By the Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 19.—The case of Edward Young Clarke of Atlanta, former acting imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, and at one time head of the propagation department of the organization who is charged with violation of the Mann act, was postponed until December 17 when it was called this afternoon in federal court here.

Clarke entered a plea of "not guilty," then advanced reasons for the delay which were sustained by the court.

The defense announced that the law firm of Henry & Clark of Houston had just entered the case and desired to familiarize themselves with the defense. They asked for one month delay and without argument Judge J. C. Hutcheson granted the application.

Auto Tag Fee Brings Row; Campaign Expense is Latest Item.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 19.—The impeachment trial of Gov. J. C. Walton was drawing rapidly to a close today with a verdict probable late this afternoon or tomorrow.

With the defense table deserted as a result of the executive's unexpected withdrawal from the hearing Saturday. The prosecution was today winding up the loose ends of their case and introduced the testimony of a few witnesses.

When the prosecution rests a brief summary of the evidence introduced in support of the 16 charges which have been covered is to be presented to the court and a vote on the acquittal or conviction is expected at once.

The charge that Governor Walton suspended the writ of habeas corpus during the period of martial law in Oklahoma, was presented briefly by the prosecution. The executive proclamation suspending the writ was read to the court with the announcement: "That's all there is to it." The passage from the state constitution providing that the privilege of writ of habeas corpus shall never be suspended by the authorities of this state," was then quoted.

Concluding testimony in support that the executive had collected excessive campaign funds the prosecution questioned M. M. Henderson, former state highway commissioner, who said he had obtained $5,000 from a "Mr. Brown" of Louisville, Ky. Brown, he explained, was connected with a shirt manufacturing company which had a contract with the state for convict labor of the Oklahoma penitentiary.

Asked if the governor knew that he accepted the contribution from Brown, who represented this company, the witness said: "I think I made that clear to him."

Auto Tag Question Up.
The question of automobile tags issued to state legislators for $1 each bobbed up again during Henderson's cross examination by court members. Senator A. E. Darnell of Clinton speaking with intense feeling declared that no member of the senate court who as a senator had received a $1 motor tag, was not qualified to sit in the court.

Let's clean our own house. Is a member whose record is unclean entitled to sit as a judge in this trial? Darnell declared.

Senator W. M. Gulager of Muskogee told the court he had accepted a $1 tag and asked that he be permitted "as one of the accused" to explain. Senator Clark Nichols volunteered the information that he was "one of the unfortunate members." Attempts to proceed with the trial only reverted to discussion by the court and arguments lasting over the greater part of an hour.

Senator Gulager's attempt to suspend Rule 18 and dispose of the tag question was unsuccessful and he withdrew the motion to that effect and after a prolonged discussion announced he would present it tomorrow.

The official oath of Governor Walton that he spent $1,520 on campaign expenses was introduced by the prosecution shortly after Dr. E. T. Bynum former executive counselor, had testified that contributions to the campaign fund from E. W. Marland, president of the Marland Oil and Refining Co. (Continued on Page Three)

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—On the banks of the Wash stand Texie Collin and Jack Warhope, young and very much in love. Texie is the only daughter of old Pap Simon, rich man and money-lender. Jack is the orphan boy of Pap Simon, who had foreclosed a mortgage on the Warhope estate. At first Texie and Jack talk sadly of Ken Collin, the girl's missing brother. Then Jack says that in ten days his servitude will be over, that he will go to California for gold and that he will come back. The girl's missing brother. Then Jack says that in ten days his servitude will be over, that he will go to California for gold and that he will come back. The girl's missing brother. Then Jack says that in ten days his servitude will be over, that he will go to California for gold and that he will come back.

CHAPTER II.—Simon Collin welcomes the minister and introduces the villagers. The preacher is a young man with a beard, enormous spectacles, stiff neck stock and patent leather boots.

CHAPTER III.—At supper at the Collin home the preacher, who had been Ken's roommate at college, tells how the boy killed a gambler and disappeared. His father attributes Ken's fall from grace to his red lock of hair, an inheritance from "Red Collin," a pirate in the days of Elizabeth. Then Pap Simon has a sort of stroke, brought on by reading a letter from Ken, "somewhere in New York," who curses his father on his death bed. A postscript by another hand says he is dead.

CHAPTER IV.—At the village store and postoffice Loge Belden, a newcomer, says he saw the new person with his arm around Texie. Jack slaps him, kills him, shoots a pistol from his hand and makes him say he was mistaken.

He backed himself off another huge section; gulped it down; laughed contemptuously, and slammed the rest of the beautiful confection at a window with a force that snuffed out a candle and shivered the glass to splinters; he glared around at the shrinking circle and smacked the knife against the palm of his hand.

"Say, ladies," he leered, his voice sounding harsh and strident in the dead silence of the room, "you and the youngsters needn't t' git panicky. I ain't goin' t' hurt you none. I jist want'd t' git a look at a jay I've hear'n tell shoots up K'nuckians."

The reference was too plain to be misunderstood. Not a man there but had heard of the shoot-up in the post office the evening before. Every eye turned toward Jack Warhope, standing a step or two in front of the shrinking circle—for the others had drawn back and he had not.

The eyes of the desperado followed the eyes of the crowd. Slouching across the floor till the two stood face to face, he stiffened and glared with dull savagery.

Texie, just back of the preacher at the punch bowl, leaned across the table and almost stopped breathing.

"I'm a K'nuckian."

"I low they was right sorry when y'u left."

The reply stung the drunk man to madness. With unexpected viciousness he lunged and struck with the knife.

The woodsman sprang back, warded the blow with ready quickness, and whipped a vicious jab to the chin that pitched the intruder backward to the floor. But the blow, quick as it was, had come the flick of an instant too late, the knife had found his flesh, grazed the left side of his neck, ripped through collar and tie and gashed his shoulder halfway to the armpit.

Right there the Flatwoods showed its teeth. Fifty pistols leaped into view. At Counterman, far back in the crowd, snatched a long-barreled six-gun from somewhere under his blouse and his lanky body stiffened to balance, a light in his one eye no man there ever seen before. Uncle Nick, with a vigor that set at defiance his weight of years, hurried younger men aside and sprang into the cleared circle.

But with so many women and children present pistols were out of the question. The desperado doubtless counted on this very fact. Stung to madness by the blow, he leaped up and lunged again with the knife.

This time he ran square into the preacher. With a readiness and courage hardly looked for in one of his cloth, he had stepped in front of Jack Warhope, his tall figure erect and superbly dominant.

Fifty flatwoodsmen, half crouched and straining forward, stood staring. The eyes of the dark-faced man stretched so wide that they appeared to bulge from their sockets. He lifted a dirty hand, brushed it across the wiry stubble of his face and, like a man half dazed, slowly shut the clasp knife and put it back in his pocket. Fifty flatwoodsmen relaxed, straightened; fifty pistols went back into hiding.

The preacher slowly raised an arm

Ratification Decision on Opium

Pact May Take Several Years

(By the Associated Press)

GENEVA, Nov. 19.—Fifty nations are awaiting the ratification of the opium convention by Switzerland, and they will have to wait many months, perhaps years, before a decision is taken. The question is not a federal but a cantonal one, and at present 22 Swiss cantons, not including three half-cantons, are "considering" the matter.

and pointed toward the open door. The desperado's eyes dropped; he rubbed his lips together as if to loosen them; turned and stalked from the room.

"Mebbe we ortn't t' let 'im git away," muttered a voice.

"Aw leave 'im go," grunted Uncle Nick, a curiously puzzled expression on his face as he gazed at the open door through which the renegade had gone. "He's licked—an 'e ain't wot'n hangin'."

The old man turned away, still with the puzzled expression on his face, motioned Jack to a chair at the side of the room and began examining his hurt.

At that moment Texie slipped through the crowd, some white strips of torn tablecloth in her hand, and approached the woodsman. A smile twisted his lips, and the girl, dipping one of the strips in the cold water Aunt Liza brought, began to wash the blood from the gashed shoulder and make it ready to be bandaged.

The preacher looked on a moment, turned away and went back among the women who were gathering again about the punch bowl. The elaborate frock coat and stiff neck stock had again asserted themselves. The stoop had come back to his shoulders; the flare had left his eyes.

The girl, with fingers trembling, glanced through the open door into the square of darkness that had swallowed up the desperado; bent low over the bandages, and brought her face close to the woodsman's ear.

"Jack—he looked like—like—Ken would 'a' looked—"

The woodsman started; looked into the square of darkness; and then into the girl's face.

"No, no!" he whispered. "Even if he was alive, he wouldn't 'a' come down that—low!"

CHAPTER VII

Fancies and Fence Rails

Jack Warhope made a one-handed job of his work among the feed-pens next forenoon, though it was a task for two. The young woodsman was immensely sensitive over the fact that he was a bound boy, though Simon Collin never obtruded it on him and seldom exercised any sort of authority over him.

He allowed him to live on in the cabin where his father and mother had dreamed their dream, to come and go as he pleased. The shrewd old money-lender probably knew that the young man's high spirit would urge him further than any amount of exercised authority possibly could. And Simon Collin knew the race from which his bound boy had sprung.

From the first, Simon's treatment of his bound boy had caused his neighbors no small wonder—it was so unlike him. He had sent him to the village school till he outgrew it, and had allowed him to roam the woods without any sort of restraint. Far from discouraging his very aptitude for woodcraft, he had even loosened his heart-strings—and his purse-strings; an infinitely harder thing for him to do—to the extent of buying him the best double-barreled shotgun the market afforded, and a revolver of model and workmanship as fine as the art of revolver-making could produce at that time—two gifts on which the boy certainly cast no discredit.

The morning was far gone when the woodsman finished his task at the feed-pens. As he stood leaning against the fence, the events of the day before crossed his mind—the heelprints on the dusty deck of the concealed houseboat; the ivory-handled six-gun; the spark of flint that had transformed the peering eyes of the preacher when he faced the desperado's knife. From this, his mind reverted to the words of Belden about what he had seen in the little park.

A face rose before him—a face compelling in its easy savagery—that, in spite of its studious severity, seemed to have a strange fascination for Texie. He knew she had let him walk home with her from the festival—a privilege that meant more in the Flatwoods than anywhere else in the world. A deep breath came up out of his breast; his hand gripped the fence rail hard.

But many an insistent task lay waiting. The thought roused him. As he raised his arm to put on his hat, the sweat got at the cut in his shoulder and stung him.

He had intended to haul in some shock corn from the bottoms. He frowned toward the wagon; plucked the blouse loose about his shoulder; finally went up into the woods to inspect a string of rail fence that would have to be repaired before the stock cattle could be turned out of the lower lots into the upland pasture.

He had spent some time readjusting the fallen rails and straightening crooked panels when a tiny spot of color in a corner of the fence caught his eye. For some reason it arrested his instant attention. In a moment he was down on his knees parting the weeds and tangled brambles where a yellow orchid had just unfolded the mysteries of its enchanted slipper to the sun.

He rose to his feet after a time, but stood gazing down at the flower—a spot of gold in its mean setting.

Stopping a few minutes later to ease his shoulder a bit, he happened to glance over the fence into the woods. The act was purely involuntary, but a sight met his eyes that instantly drove every other consideration out of his mind—from behind a log a man was glowering at him.

He ducked out of sight in a flash, and the woodsman stooped to his task—carelessly; without so much as the flick of an eye to betray that he had seen anything at all—but he had caught a distinct view of a slouch hat, a rough flannel shirt, open at the collar, a glare of dark eyes that smoldered in a face dark and scowling and covered with a stubble of black beard—the desperado of the festival.

Texie's startled whisper, as she had fastened the bandages about his shoulder the evening before, flashed across his thought. The face behind the log and the face of his memory rose to his mind as distinct as a reflection in Whispering spring. Unbelievable though it was—against all reason in the light of that terrible letter—he saw the resemblance she had fancied—vague, half intangible, but none the less a resemblance.

With the tail of his eye on the log, the woodsman went on with his work, apparently absorbed in it, really with no other thought than to put as great a length of fence row as possible between himself and that scowling face, and in as short a time as was prudent.

The moment he thought himself out of sight, he took out a roll of the fence, crawled through the opening and, with every caution known to woodcraft, crept back through the underbrush toward the log. The broken outline of it at last came into view through a clump of hazel. He raised his head ever so little and lay listening. Not a false note disturbed the soft purr of nature; the pulse of the woods beat normal. He dropped his head; crawled up to the log. The leaves were flattened and still warm, but the man was gone.

He searched the moss and leaves until he found the trail—the scrape of a boot in a spot of moist ground at the foot of an oak. After that it was easy. There were two sets of tracks. To his surprise one set led back toward the cliffs above the homestead. He followed it. At a point along the bluff that commanded the nearest view of the cabin under the crimson rambler the matted leaves and broken weeds beneath a clump of bushes at the very brink of the rocks showed where the renegade had concealed himself. Three half-burned matches, with which he had probably lighted his pipe, indicated that he had remained some time.

Jack glanced down at the tiny cabin, the barn-lot, turned and followed the trail back under the trees.

Past the log it led, away to the north, down the face of the wooded bluff and into the narrow road that threaded Eagle hollow. He followed it within sight of the rude hovel at the head of the hollow into which Loge Belden and his sister had lately moved; stopped; studied the place critically for a moment; finally turned, climbed the bluff and, with an uncomfortable feeling of hidden eyes upon him, returned to his task at the fence.

The forenoon was gone by the time he finished it. As he trudged back, the corner where he had found the yellow orchid drew his eye irresistibly.

Hacking away the dead leaves he dug it up, being careful to leave enough soil about the roots to prevent their withering, and carried it in his hands out through the trees and up among the tumbled ramparts of Black rock.

In the tiny flower bed at the foot of the sandstone pinnacle where the three names were carved, he hollowed out a place in the rich leaf-mold and set the orchid with the others—all of them doubtless having come there at different times in the same way; rose to his feet and stood deeply pondering, as his gaze rested on the three names carved in the rock. That baffling resemblance, in spite of him, would creep back into his thought.

The bold frankness of the man's face settled to a deeper thoughtfulness; he looked down at the new orchid among the old, fresh and piquant as when he dug it out of the fence corner; glanced toward the red-roofed cottage, and set his feet to the rough path that led down to the fallow yard.

CHAPTER VIII

The Fairy's Secret

The furnishings of the cabin under the crimson rambler would have been a revelation to a stranger entering the door for the first time. A soft-toned rug from the Orient covered three-fourths of the rough floor, stopping just short of the cook stove, which, with its array of utensils, occupied the other fourth. The bed was high positioned and equipped, dressed in the finest linen and hung with faded tapestry. The chairs were handsomely upholstered, while a center table of hand-carved rosewood stood in the mid-section of the floor.

men, and the Swiss government, which is already responsible for more than one hundred thousand unemployed, is apprehensive of ap-

Along the south wall an American flag of silk hung draped, and under its lopped-up center two pictures—the beautiful face of a woman; and in the companion frame, the fine, upstanding figure of a soldier in the uniform of a colonel of Mounted Rangers—the man and the woman who had dreamed the dream that never came true.

The woodsman had finished his task at the barn and feedpens that evening and returned to the cabin, where, deeply thoughtful he was half mechanically building a fire in the cook stove when his quick ear caught the sound of a light step coming along the path from the orchard. He laid down the kindling and turned toward the door.

The light step had stopped, and Texie stood outlined in the doorway, her eyes dancing alive over the thought of having taken the alert woodsman by surprise, the round wonder of her throat and cheeks touched to a softer blush by the waning sunlight that slipped in under the crimson rambler.

The man dragged off his hat. The girl glanced over the cabin; lifted her eyes.

"Jack, you're the best housekeeper in the Flatwoods."

The floor creaked with the weight of him as he came to the door. He had to stoop to pass under the lintel, and his massive shoulders spread almost from jamb to jamb.

"It ain't me," he said in his slow way. "There's a wonderful fairy about these hills som'er that slips in when I'm out in the fields, and no matter how upside down I've left things, she jist touples 'em with them small hands fairies has got, 'r mebbe says 'r sings some wonderful charm to 'em, and when I come back, there they are, all spick and span. Some folks says ther ain't no fairies, but I know ther is—ome, anyhow."

The girl's expressive face was alive and eager.

"Why don't y'u try some day t'—"

The heart of the big woodsman rose to his eyes. For a transcendent moment the man in him, sprung from generations of soldiers and gentlemen, supremely dominated the bound boy. He drank in the wonder of her hair, the plump soft mystery of her throat and bosom, and his hands instinctively reached toward her.

"T'd give the world—"

He stopped; the transcendent moment passed. He dropped his eyes and crushed his hat rim in his powerful fingers.

The girl bent her head and a deep thoughtfulness filmed the brown of her eyes.

"Jack—"

He felt the slight tremor in her voice and half guessed what was coming.

"That face las' night—it ha'nts me."

Involuntarily he glanced up at the high brink of the cliff, where, under a clump of bushes, lay some matted leaves and a pinch of pipe ashes.

"Don't let it," was his slow answer. "There's the pilot of the Obenchain, now, looks a pow'ful sight like Lark Sharp, and they ain't a mite of kin in the world."

She pondered the answer and seemed much impressed, even relieved, as he fancied.

"How's Pap Simon t'day?"

"Por father! He ain't hardly left the house sence that—night. He's wrote and wrote, and looked at papers in 'is safe I didn't know 'e had, and this afternoon he had Zeke Pollek up with his notary public seal." A shadow flitted across her face. She laced her smooth fingers; gripped them. "That—terrible letter! He's read it and read it. Pore Ken—"

The man reached his arm up over the door; absently felt a spray of rose vine, its buds swollen big with the mystery that was soon to be revealed. The girl glanced at the hand among the rosebuds and slowly turned to the frank and thoughtful face.

"That's why I came—Daddy wants t' see y'u."

"Me?"

"He wants y'u t' come over a minute."

"Y'u didn't tell 'im nothin' about that—that—face?"

The girl's eyes flinched at the question.

"No—only that you got—hurt."

She drew a step nearer, laid her fingers lightly upon the sleeve of his blouse.

"How is y'ur shoulder?"

proving the treaty which would increase their number.

He fumbled the side of his open collar.

"Aw, it ain't nothin'."

The smile came back and brought the dimples.

"Jack—"

He stole a quick look at the side of her upturned face and waited.

"I 'ben s' pinin' hungry all day somehow fr the rocks and woods—they're all waked up and wonderful now—and—"

She paused. The man drank in the exquisite profile of her fresh young face, her lips parted, her eyes softly retrospective with the smile that nestled in them.

"I lowed mebbe y'u wouldn't mind takin' me up there, bein' y'ur shoulder ain't—well."

"Wouldn't mind takin' y'u—!" The man seemed to grope for a word big enough to finish the thought. "W'y—I'd—I'd—we'll be startin' the minute we can run over and see what Pap Simon wants—b'fore, if y'u say so."

"No, I reckon we better go t' father first, he's been that fussed and restless sence—"

She turned and took a thoughtful step toward the path that led across the orchard to the red-roofed cottage. The man followed, suddenly stopped, raised a quick glance up to the wild and tumbled pinnacles of the cliff, and hurried back to the cabin. The girl followed him as far as the door, where she stood mildly wondering to see him take down the beautifully modeled revolver—the gift of her father—from where it hung on a peg behind the cook stove, carefully examine it and buckle it on under his blouse.

Jack Warhope was startled at the change the three days had wrought in the banker. The lines of his craggy face had noticeably deepened.

Texie ran to him and knelt by the chair. He laid a great gaunt hand on her head, and after a time looked up at the woodsman, standing so tall and strong in the floor that he seemed almost out of place in so small a room.

"I'm hearin' they clawed y'u up las' night."

The woodsman grinned; the old man went on:

"Didn't hurt y'u, did they—much?"

"A cat scratch."

The old man's fingers strayed over the girl's hair.

"Jack."

"Yes, sir."

"You've b'en a good boy and you've worked hard." The woodsman shifted to his other foot and glanced down at the bright hair of the girl. The old banker studied him, slowly. "I never noticed it b'fore how much y'u look—and act—like y'ur father."

INDIAN NAMES USED IN FOOTBALL BATTLES

(By the Associated Press)

LAWRENCE, Kans., Nov. 19.—Haskell Indian Institute's football eleven this season embraces 19 tribes, originating in eight states and one territory. Oklahoma leads with nine representatives on the squad. Others half from Missouri, California, South Dakota, Montana, Wisconsin, Washington, Kansas and Alaska.

The official line-ups this year do not carry the tribal names. Each member knows them, however, and in the heat of battle they frequently are employed. Observers say the native call lends a lusty touch in human scrimmage. Some of the Christian names, tribe and Indian names of the squad follow:

J. Levi, captain, Arapaho, Big Buffalo; Carpenter, Sioux, Last Winter; G. Levi, Arapaho, Antelope; Kipp, Blackfeet, Sun Down; Casey, Creek, Running Wolf; Petravovich, Thlinget (Alaska), Eskimo Pie; Sumpter, Choctaw, Turn Bull; Ward, Yakima, Fire Starter; Norton, Hoopa, Lost Hare; Smith, Oneida, Kill 'Em Quick; Elkins, Caddo, Rapid Water; Kilbuck, Munsie, Kill Buck; Hood, Shawnee, White Turkey; Gurnoe, Chipewa, Wrinkle Meat; Hawley, Grosventre, Horn Weasel; Ottopob, Comanche, Two Hatchets; Parnell, Assiniboin, Afraid of His Track; L. Colby, Klamath, Takes the Gun.

Electric Lights' Pool Flowers Into Awakening and Retiring

(By the Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 19.—Flowers susceptible to sunlight will display the same reactions under powerful electric lights, reports Arthur Pillsbury, official photographer at Yosemite National Park in California. He has been making motion pictures of flowers awakening and retiring.

He explained, however, that some flowers like the Evening Snow, would awaken by the artificial sun but refuse to go to bed by it. The habits of most of the folding and unfolding blossoms, he said, are so well established that one could tell time by them because they arouse themselves at a certain hour and fold their coverings about them with equal regularity.

Paris in Third Place Surprised At Small Population Increase

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Paris, with a population of 2,906,000 now holds third place among the largest cities in the world, ranking after New York and London, according to official statistics of the French Ministry of Commerce.

Great surprise has been expressed, in view of the congested condition of the French capital and the absolute impossibility of finding apartments, that the population of Paris has only increased a few thousands during the last 10 years. In 1910 the population of Paris numbered 2,888,000.

QUAKE PROOF HOUSES

ADVOCATED BY CHILE

(By the Associated Press)

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Nov. 19.—Dwellers in the earthquake zone of Chile have been supplied with simple but scientific instructions how best to build their houses to withstand possible collapse.

After the earthquake of last November the Chilean government sought expert building advice, and under the auspices of the Carnegie Foundation Dr. Bailey Willis, Stanford geologist went to Chile and studied the situation for five months. He prepared his conclusions in pamphlet form and this booklet in Spanish, has been made available to the inhabitants of the quake zone.

U. S. Still Leads in Oil

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The United States produced almost two-thirds of the world output of petroleum last year, and Mexico slightly more than one-fifth, the Geological Survey reports. World which the United States produced was 854,889,000 barrels, of which the United States supplied 557,531,000 and Mexico 182,278,000 barrels.

In the 65 years, 1857-1922, world production of petroleum totaled 10,266,788,000 barrels. The United States furnished 62.3 percent, or 6,459,582,000 barrels.

SMITH-NOLEN

The marriage of Mr. Everett Smith and Miss Beuna Nolen was solemnized Sunday at Oklahoma City, according to word received today. They will return to Ada in a few days and continue to make their home here.

Mrs. Smith has spent most of her life in Ada and has won a high place in the esteem of the hundreds who have known her from early childhood. For a number of years she has held the position of cashier at Simpson's.

Mr. Smith is an electrician at the cement plant and has the reputation of being a young man of excellent character and one who is making good in his chosen occupation.

FORMER ADA GIRL IS MARRIED IN CALIFORNIA Mrs. Adams Lewis Guyer announces the marriage of her daughter, Edith to Melvin Iiben Wilkins, on Friday, October 26.

The marriage took place at the Indian Mission near Riverside. The ceremony was performed by an Indian minister, and was the first event of the kind in the history of the Mission.

Mrs. Wilkins is a graduate of the 21 class of Pasadena high school and a former student of the East Central State College at Ada, Oklahoma, where she was born and spent her early youth. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins will be at home to their friends at 1616 El Centro street, South Pasadena after November 1.—Pasadena Star-News.

MUSICAL TREAT AFFORDED ADA IN QUARTET NUMBERS The Criterion Quartet which appears at Convention Hall tonight under the auspices of the American Legion, appeared on the program with the world renowned prima donna, Mme. Melba, the famous baritone Emilio De Gorgozza, and the "Wizard of the Piano," Ethel Leginska, last spring in the nineteenth annual musical festival at Bangor. The papers in the east at that time termed the ten recalls that they received as "almost sensational", especially coming after the triumph of Melba. The blending of the voices of these four singers has been termed the acme of perfection in quartet work. They are Americans singing in plain old American English and giving numbers dear to the America hearts.

High school and ward school, and College students will be admitted at a reduced price.

P. T. A. PROCLAMATION The Parent-Teacher Association of this city should get solidly back of the "Educational Week" program as outlined by our national, state and city leaders in educational movements.

To that end we are urging that all members of our Parent-Teachers Association in Ada shall further the work as much as possible by visiting the schools during this week and thereby showing our appreciation and cooperation. A report of all such visits will be called for at our next regular meetings.

Hunters Award Medal to Pup

For Facing Mountain Lion Alone

(By the Associated Press)

PRESCOTT, Ariz., Nov. 19.—A bound pup has been awarded a medal for bravery. The dog, alone and unprotected, recently held a mountain lion at bay in a Colorado river canyon until a party of hunters appeared. Ramsay Patterson, noted big game hunter of the Southwest, killed the lion with his revolver.

The lion had been driven to a flat rock by the pack of hounds, but when it turned, snarling, all the pursuers except the one young dog drew back in terror. The lone pup scrambled up on the rocks and growled at the lion, bluffing the menacing beast into worried inaction. The hunters arranged to attach a medal to the hounds collar.

Harbin Gay But Not In Path Of Sin

Harbin—This city, reputed to be the last outpost of sin, open and unabashed, has been found to be less wicked than supposed.

Those morally atrocious but sometimes alluring forms of amusement that have given to the world the phrase, "demi-monde," and long since found to have abandoned their traditional haunts in Paris, Vienna, Havana and Buenos Aires were supposed to have found refuge in Harbin.

Even Shanghai, known as a man's town and port which rumor has portrayed as a city of lotus and poppy where people do as they please, had been given second place to Harbin in the matter of immoral doings. The truth is, neither Shanghai, nor Harbin resemble Babylon to any great degree. In Shanghai the public is all worked up over the question: Can a cabaret girl be good? In Harbin the problem is to get cabaret girls.

Harbin is a young and foreign town. It is Russian rather than Chinese. It is a mixture of village and metropolis; of crudeness and elegance and of gaudy gaiety and of those sturdier pursuits common to the Wolfvilles and Main Streets of every country. There is no drainage and in wet weather horses lunge through the water dragging droshkies up to the axles. The principal occupation of the shopkeepers here seems to be sitting down.

There are many women and girls from the grottos of Moscow and Petrograd and from nearer cities who are here to amuse and to be amused but above all to get in this wild, new place of livelihood or perhaps a small fortune which some day they hope to take back to relatives. But there are plenty of good women, too. The fresh ruddy faces of women lately peasants or the daughters of peasants abound. And like the women of all new towns who have menfolk and children to care for they work hard.

Even in this mud and in these sordid places where men and women meet to drink and dance and sing as a means of escaping reality there is plenty of vanity. As much in proportion to the feminine population, perhaps, as was to be found at the old French courts, opportunities considered. No girl is too young to manage to obtain a lipstick. And many lips here are far too crimson to be the work of wind and sun.

And so the people not bent on business alone play and smile and wait, keeping what peace they can with the Chinese authorities and hoping the "Reds" will not come to make things worse.

ORDERS BAR FILIPINO OFFICERS FROM LODGES

(By the Associated Press)

MANILA, Nov. 19.—Municipal officials of the Philippines hereafter are to be prohibited from joining organizations except those of a religious, athletic or purely recreational nature.

The executive bureau, with the approval of the secretary of the department of the interior, has issued a circular to this effect with a view to guarding against affiliation of members of local police forces with organizations likely to interfere with their duties.

Masonic lodges, secret societies and labor or mutual aid unions are included in the ban, executive officials explained in connection with the circular. In such organizations, it is stated, members are inclined, in accordance with secret vows or rituals to enforce the law less rigorously wherever fellow members are affected unfavorably.

COUNTY CAPTURE THREE ON DRUNKENNESS CHARGE

Liquor flowed freely along the gravel highway, according to county officers and three were arrested and placed in the county jail until sobriety gained its throne.

The arrests, John Blocker, Buck Elrod and Claude Ferris were preparing to make bond for their release this morning on a charge of drunkenness and disturbance.

and from the Royal Dutch Shell Oil Co., had totaled $73,000.

The testimony followed a tilt between court members in which it was demanded that if the witness be required to reveal these figures Senator Harry Glasser, Republican, be required to tell he court how much the Standard had contributed to the campaign fund of Governor Walton's Republican opponent, Senator Glasser denied any knowledge of a contribution by the latter company.

Dr. Bynum testified that between $7,000 and $8,000 was collected after the executive's election to defray outstanding expenses and to meet new obligations including a banquet for members of the legislature.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 19.—

With the end of the impeachment trial of Gov. J. C. Walton virtually certain late today or tomorrow, interest is already swinging to the hearing in United States district court here Wednesday in which counsel for the governor will make a second effort to obtain government intervention in the impeachment trial.

Judge John H. Cottrell will be asked to issue a retroactive restraining order setting aside all action of the impeachment court. Should the court refuse to take jurisdiction counsel for the governor announced today that they were ready to go directly to the supreme court of the United States with an application for a writ of supersedeas to return the executive to authority pending the courts decision on his application for a restraining order.

F. E. Riddle, chief counsel for Gov. J. C. Walton, declared that no decision in the case would be expected before March.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY
KEEP THE WORD: Whoso keepeth the word, in him verily is the love of God perfected; hereby know we that we are in him.—1 John 2:5.

TAGS.

Tags are about the most indispensable things in modern life, according to a recent address delivered before the Lambs' club of Enid by Earle Lee, an insurance man of that city. He goes on to point out the instinct in even the most primitive of men to tag objects and one another. As civilization advances so does the number of tags. Finally it reaches the point where a tag carries a great deal of meaning and is also a valuable commercial asset. When one sees the Ford tag he instinctively thinks of the Henry on four wheels. Marconi calls wireless communication to mind, while McCormick and the reaper are synonymous terms.

A tag is not always something a man is proud of. He may not like to be tagged a crook, a skinflint, shyster or such appellation, although he may richly earn such tags, but they may stick just the same.

How a tag may continue to live is illustrated by the word "gat", that one often hears in connection with a gun. This originated with the first machine gun invented by a man by the name of Gatling in 1861 and used in the Civil war. For a long time the Gatling gun was the only machine gun known and although it long ago disappeared as an obsolete weapon, the tag still remains.

As Mr. Lee sees it, there is but one thing in the universe that is not tagged and that is the tongue of an irascible woman, although, as he points out, the woman herself may be tagged by those who have had occasion to feel the sharpness of her tongue.

Yes, we are all tagged. Our parents first tag us with a name that suits their fancy and then our associates tie a good many more to us as we journey through life. It depends on the course one follows as to what the tags are.

With the announcement of the candidacy of Hiram Johnson of California for the Republican nomination for the presidency, things will likely pick up in G. O. P. quarters. It certainly means that Coolidge will not have a walkover next year. Johnson has always been a fighter and will probably give a good account of himself this time. With the passing of Penrose of Pennsylvania the party has no outstanding leader to dictate the nomination as Penrose did that of Harding, so it may soon develop into a free-for-all scrap with one man's chances as good as any others. Johnson has never been popular with the old guard and the old timers have not forgotten how California in 1916, while giving Johnson a majority of 200,000 for senator, cast the electoral vote that put Woodrow Wilson in office for a second term. During the campaign Hughes, the Republican nominee, made a round of California and ignored Johnson completely, although on one occasion both put up at the same hotel. It was never proved that the vote at the election a few weeks later was due to Johnson's influence, but there was no doubt about the effectiveness of the warning that Johnson was a man to be reckoned with in California.

Press reports from Hollywood state that although the place is crowded with ambitious girls who long to become famous in the movies, thousands are coming and going all the time deeply disappointed. With so many applicants a girl has a very slender chance to show what she can do and even then it is usually a long time before one can earn enough to live. It said that most of the girls arrive without a dollar and then their struggles are pitiful in the extreme. A club has been organized to shelter these ambitious girls but so many apply that it is impossible to take care of all of them until they can return home or secure other employment. Girls have been known to walk hundreds of miles in the hope of getting a chance only to find that there is nothing for them. Every effort is made to discourage girls from making this pilgrimage to the shrine of the silver screen, but still the stream flows with undiminished volume.

GOOD FOR THE LEGION.

The News wishes to commend the American Legion post for its good work in securing the Criterion Quartet for Ada. This is an exceptionally high class attraction and the boys had to put up a stiff guarantee to secure it. Such entertainments tend to elevate the tone of any place and in bringing such to this city the veterans are showing a highly commendable pride in their home town by offering its citizens the best to be had. The boys cannot expect to make much out of an attraction that costs as much as this one does, hence it is readily seen that they were not thinking altogether of themselves when they contracted for this quartet. They deserve all the support that can be given them.

Very often it happens that when a man speaks of another as one who "thinks for himself," he only means that the other fellow thinks like he does.

CAPITALIZING WOES
(Indianapolis News)

Capital is for the most part employed to a profit to its owners. Labor has little reason to complain so far as steady jobs are concerned. Agriculture, while not enjoying the status it should, is not nearly as bad off as it was a year ago. Mortgages are being reduced in most places, and, except wheat, most crops and livestock are beginning to show a return to farmers in excess of the cost of production. It is not meant to imply that conditions are ideal. There are many difficult problems arising out of a more or less unbalanced distribution of the material rewards of industry. Yet the unrest, turmoil and bickering may be out of proportion to the admitted ills. Perhaps, as Melvin A. Taylor, president of the First Trust and Savings bank of Chicago says, "the greater part of our trouble is mental." To quote:

"Today capital shrinks from its burden of taxation and rails at the restrictions of government regulation. Labor clamors for shorter hours, shrieks for better working conditions and demands more pay. The farmer, exploited by politicians and suffering from the unwise activity of earnest but ill-advised friends, is rampant in his advocacy of political fallacies which would mean economic hari-kari for the country were they to prevail. While capitalizing the woes, real or imaginary, of each group, the demagogue is busy riding into power on the protests or approval of his particular faction, each and all of whom are prophesying, dreaming and 'seeing things.' After all, is capital unduly handicapped, is business, commerce and industry too severely restrained, is labor as a whole crippled by unsanitary conditions or unwholesome home surroundings, does it serve too many hours, is it too poorly paid? Is agriculture completely on the rocks, does it languish because of legislative neglect?"

Certainly as far as the United States is concerned economic disaster does not lurk just ahead unless the people cause it by support of legislative and economic fallacies. There has been much capitalizing of woes by some political elements, whose stock in trade consists wholly of promises that are impossible of realization and that are based on illogical promises. However much the government might do to remedy defects, and none will deny that there is always much that it can do in a legitimate way, it still will remain true that it is from the efforts of the individual that the greater part of progress will come. Listening to and depending on political malcontents will retard rather than advance personal and national welfare. Psychology, as Woodrow Wilson once said, plays a large part in business.

JURY CAREFULLY SELECTED TO GET COURT REALISM FOR FILM PRODUCTION

Handpicking a jury for the screen is even harder work than picking one for a genuine trial. So says Charles Furthmann, former deputy district attorney of Chicago, who has officiated at the choosing of several hundred juries in his nine years' career in office, following the task of choosing the jury for "The Acquittal" Universal's super-Jewel adaptation of Wil-ta Weinman's famous stage play, screened in a huge court room setting specially built at Universal City, which comes to the American theatre today.

"We had to get a jury true to type, an average jury that would be convincing to anyone used to attending court sessions," said Furthmann. "Instead of probing a prospective jurors mind for prejudice, we had to go over each candidate with the fine tooth comb of experience for jury characteristics, and match each one with the next to get as diversified a looking aggregation as one usually sees in a jury-box. In other words, we wanted a man who looked like a mechanic to sit beside one who looked like a banker; a clubwoman and a working woman, and all the types in between, boiled down to a mixed gathering of twelve people."

The play is a new idea in pictures, and is to the screen what "The Bat" was to the speaking stage. Aside from its mystery angle it is a lavish production, several hundred people appearing in its gigantic court room scenes. Also thrills and heart-interest pack its swift action.

Norman Kerry and Claire Windsor head a big all-star cast in this new Universal production, one of the most thrilling mystery stories Firm, Plump Flesh!

MANY are the eyes that are turned to gaze with keen admiration on the well developed, healthy girl no matter where she may be—on the rapidly moving thoroughfare or gilding gracefully over the dance floor.

All eyes turn because we all appreciate the girl with the figure so firm and plump—the girl with radiantly red cheeks, cheeks that carry a touch of roses from nature's own garden—the girl with the sparkling eyes, keen and sharp—the girl with buoyancy and the swing of youth.

Not necessarily an out-of-doors girl. Just a girl with ever increasing blood cells. Just a girl filled with the vim and vigor of youth. S. S. S., since 1826, has stood for increased blood cells. S. S. S. means restored strength—rekindled vitality—added energy. Take S. S. S. and watch the bloom of youth return to your cheeks. Watch that flabby, ill nourished flesh fade away before flesh that is firm and plump. Red blood cells will do it and S. S. S. will build them. It contains only pure vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.

GERMAN CRITIC HITS AT FAULTS

Declares Americans Able to Conceal Faults More Than Germans.

(By the Associated Press)

COLOGNE, Nov. 19.—German morals are just as good as American morals, but the Americans are more successful in concealing their lapses, according to Dr. Paul Rohrbach, who recently completed a tour of America and is contributing a series of articles to the Cologne Gazette on his impressions of the new world. Dr. Rohrbach says the impression which is general in Germany that moral standards are higher in the United States than in Germany is quite erroneous, as the American morality is only on the surface and that when one digs down he finds things as black as in Europe.

Dr. Rohrbach says Americans cities do not permit any large sections to be given over entirely to the social evil and to dubious amusements of various sorts, such as are common now in all European capitals, and especially in Berlin, in consequence of widespread distress and general decline in public morals.

Coeducation does not seem to have been as successful in America as had been hoped for, according to Dr. Rohrbach, who says American educators told him the automobile is a machine designed to destroy morals.

Dr. Rohrbach was startled by reading typical American novels in which the state of morals among the American middle class is unveiled, such as "Main Street," "Babbitt" Upton Sinclair's "Book of Life." But he does not believe these books give a fair picture of the life of the average American.

The high coloring of American women and the frankness with which they produce their vanity box in public and renew their complexion amused Dr. Rohrbach, but he found that women were not so much painted in circles where music and the higher things of life are given more consideration. He found that women lead in public affairs, as well as in family affairs, but heard a number of American men complain about the amount of attention paid to women.

Dr. Rohrbach thinks American women have too strong an influence in politics and says they are "apt to succumb to propaganda more readily than men." This is the reason, in his opinion, why French propaganda has so much success with the American public. However, Dr. Rohrbach found

EDUCATION WEEK

By John J. Tigert,
U. S. Commissioner of Education
The Bureau of Education will cooperate again this year in the observance of American Education Week with the American Legion and National Education Association. This will be the fourth consecutive year in which an effort has been made to emphasize education for a week throughout the Nation. Last year's observance far exceeded in interest the previous efforts, and it is expected that this year's week will set a still higher mark of educational enthusiasm. It has been decided to change the date of the week from early in December to the latter part of November. This was done largely on the suggestion of the late President Harding, who thought that the former week was too much tinged with Christmas. We have had a great many requests from various organizations and individuals asking that the week be changed. It has been decided, therefore, by mutual agreement of the organizations sponsoring the week, that this year it shall be observed November 18-24, inclusive.

As was the case last year, each day in the week will be set aside as a day of stressing some particular phase of education which is national in its needs and significance. The days of the week will be observed as follows: Sunday, November 18, For God and Country; Monday, November 19, American Constitution Day; Tuesday, November 20, Patriotism Day; Wednesday, November 21, School and Teacher Day; Thursday, November 22, Illiteracy Day; Friday, November 23, Community Day; and Saturday, November 24, Physical Education Day.

These suggested topics do not preclude various states and localities from emphasizing those features of education which they may feel require particular attention at this time. They are suggested as topics upon which the whole Nation can well unite. It is impossible for the national program to include all local needs.

As on former occasions, governors, mayors, and other executives will likewise be invited to issue proclamations and otherwise support this movement on behalf of better schools. The newspapers and the press generally may be counted on to continue their support of the movement. It is a conservative estimate that fully half the newspapers of the country supported the campaign last year editorially, not to mention stories without number that were published on educational subjects. The Bureau of Education has prepared for this year's

campaign a leaflet entitled "Suggestions for the Observance of American Education Week," which we trust will be helpful to our school people in planning and making as effective as possible the observance of Education Week. Among other things, this little leaflet sets out numbers of concrete accomplishments that were carried through in many localities last year. It is hoped that these actual achievements will inspire others with the possibility of success in these and other directions. At the present time a large number of state superintendents and state commissioners of education have appointed special directors or committees to plan the observance of the week in their respective states. These and other communications of interest and inquiry seem to foretell the greatest intensive effort yet made to enlighten the people of the country upon educational matters.

RINGMER, England, Nov. 19.—This little old village gave to the world the wives of John Harvard and William Penn, and a sign-post to tell the passing motorists of this fact has been erected. It was dedicated recently by George Harvey, the American Ambassador.

Penn married the daughter of Sir William Springett, whose names for a century preceding had been linked to this village, and whose blood has come down, in unbroken line, to the giver of the sign-post, Lady Demetriadi.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Father Ought to Know What is Necessary

At the Knife's Edge

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

A DOCTOR KAEMPFERT was about to begin to operate, the fact of the girl he had seen standing beside the injured man's bed rose before his eyes again, vivid and clear.

It was the face of Marjorie Rennie. Four years had passed since he had seen her before, and those four years had been a wilderness and an eternity of desolation in his soul. Marjorie and he had loved each other and had been engaged to be married.

The quarrel that had separated them had been immaterial; it was not the quarrel that separated them, but pride. Pride on either side, a devastating pride that brooked no softness and endured no explanations.

So they had parted, and Doctor Kaempfert had taken up his work in the hospital again.

In those four years he had become known as the most skillful surgeon in the city in a certain operation for sewing together ruptured arteries, a most difficult process.

For, if by a slip or misjudgment he permitted a clot of blood from the wound to enter a large artery, that would mean instant death.

And now he was seeing the girl in the room again. She had known him, her glance had betrayed that, but all her thoughts were with the injured man, her husband, of course.

"You must save him," she had said. And he had promised.

And it was the hardest thing in the world that he could have been called upon to do. For, looking into the white, unconscious face, half hidden beneath the ether cone, he had hated it with a hate that knew no bounds and no limitations. He hated this man who had taken Marjorie from him with mortal hate.

And so, hating him, he began the operation.

The injuries had been severe; the arteries had been clamped; but now came the difficult process, watched with hushed breath by the attending physicians. With sure, deft strokes Kaempfert laid bare the wound. He took the needle and the catgut from the nurse and began.

How easy to make that trifling error, in so large an artery, which would permit the entrance of a clot! How easy to inflict the tiny wound upon the walls that would produce the clot within them! And then... if Marjorie were free he knew he could win her back. Again and again the temptation came to him, but all the while his disciplined fingers were quickly and quietly sewing up the walls.

And now it was done, and there was no possibility of yielding to that temptation.

He stood back, breathing a deep sigh of relief, contemplated the unconscious man for a moment or two, and then, with the aid of his assistant, proceeded to sew up the external wound. And now that was completed, the ether mask was removed, and the unconscious man was already beginning to move.

"Splendid, splendid!" murmured a doctor at his side.

Kaempfert turned away without answering. That was done. He left the operating room. He went into his private room, washed his hands, changed into his street clothes. He must get away from the hospital; he must not see Marjorie again.

A nurse was tapping at the door. He strode to it and opened it impatiently.

"That lady wishes to see you, to thank you."

"No, tell her I can't see her. I am a busy man," answered Kaempfert harshly.

"She's outside; she's here, doctor." The nurse stepped back, and Doctor Kaempfert saw Marjorie standing upon the threshold.

He went to her. "I think he's all right. You must excuse me," he began confusedly.

"Arthur!" The appeal in her eyes was breaking down his resisting power. He put out one hand in futile protest.

"No, no—I don't want to see you. Marjorie," he said. "Your husband is all right now. He will make a quick recovery."

"My—my husband?"

Kaempfert stared at her.

"Arthur, he—Oh, he isn't my husband! He's my chum, Adelaide Benson's husband. I—I'm not married. Did you think I was, Arthur? I—I—Oh, can you forgive me because I've always loved you?"

She was sobbing in his arms. And neither heard the discreet cough of the nurse as she turned away.

Neatly Cured.

"Mother, I'm very sick. I can't possibly go to school today," announced James, and his mother put him to bed and sent for the doctor.

"What's the matter, my little man?" inquired the doctor when he arrived.

"Oh, my head aches," said James.

"Are your arms stiff?"

"Yes, they are both sore."

"Does your right foot ache?"

"Oh, yes, very much."

The doctor turned to wink at his reflection in the mirror.

"Hi! You're pretty bad. Let me see. Today's Saturday. You ought to be well by Monday."

"What! Is today Saturday?" exclaimed the invalid. "Oh, I thought it was Friday."

Ten minutes later James was better and he was sent to school, for the day was Friday after all.

ROYAL PAIR WILL DINE ON BREAD AND STEW

KING GEORGE and Queen Elizabeth of Greece will be among the crowned heads of Europe to observe Sunday, December 2 as International "Golden Rule Day." On his day Their Majesties will dine on bread and stew and contribute the Families all over the world are pledging themselves to partake of the same fare on Golden Rule Day for the benefit of the Near East orphans.

Plans for the publication of an American Legion newspaper for the Department of Oklahoma were fully outlined and discussed at a meeting of the State Executive Committee of the Legion on Sunday, November 11th. It was decided that the paper would be published semi-monthly.

Contract for the printing of the publication was awarded to Fred Farman, a member of the American Legion and publisher of the Norman Transcript at Norman, Oklahoma. Mr. E. R. Lehman of Okmulgee was selected as the advertising manager and Mr. David S. Shackelford of El Reno as associate editor. Both the advertising manager and the associate editor are members of the American Legion. The department adjutant, J. William Cordell, was designated as editor-in-chief and will have a general supervision over the new paper. An advisory committee of three to assist the legion department officials in the issuance of the legion paper was selected. This committee consists of W. I. Nunn of Ponca City, E. K. Bixby of Muskogee and J. C. Chatfield of Tulsa.

The first edition of the legion paper will be issued during the early part of January, 1924, but active work toward arrangements and preparations for the launching of the legion paper will begin on December 1st of this year. All legion posts in the state of Oklahoma will lend their active support in making the new publication a success.

At a recent meeting of the Department Executive Committee held in Oklahoma City, it was decided that the American Legion would lend its active support in carrying on the prison survey of ex-service men now being conducted by the Soldiers Relief Commission of the state of Oklahoma. Ray Evans of Shawnee, a member of the department executive committee, was chosen as representative for the American Legion.

A complete examination will be given each ex-service man confined at the McAlester penitentiary, the Granite reformatory and the Aylesworth camp as regards their prison history, military and occupational experience, prison records, educational history, family obligations, dependency claims, physical examination and neuro-psychiatric examination. In addition, every man having valid claims or a victory medal, bonus, liberty bonds, allotment refund, lost discharge, back pay, travel pay, reservists pay, vocational training, war risk insurance, compensation and hospitalization will have immediate attention.

The following men, in addition to the legion representative, will take active part in the survey: Dr. D. W. Griffith of Norman, Dr.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE PLAYS DUMBELLE WIFE IN "DULCY"

How many wives who wonder why their husbands turn to drink or other women stop to think that they themselves have driven them to it?

Constance Talmadge asks the question. It isn't often that a woman can be brought even momentarily to consider this question from the man's point of view. But Connie has just had an impressive lesson during the filming of some of the episodes of "Dulcy," her filmization of the Broadway stage success.

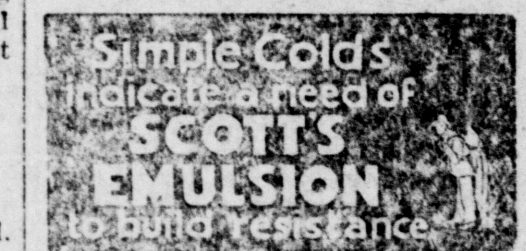

In "Dulcy" Constance Talmadge plays a wife who would drive many a husband to the lunatic asylum. And all because she insists on trying to help her husband with his business.

"Many wives make the mistake of thinking that their good intentions entitle them to meddle in their husbands' business affairs," said Miss Talmadge. "They are entirely practical in the management of household matters, but cannot be brought to see that their husbands' affairs are so much more complicated. What, on the surface, appears to be a plain, matter-of-fact plan may be in reality a piece of subtle strategy. Yet so many wives will insist on meddling."

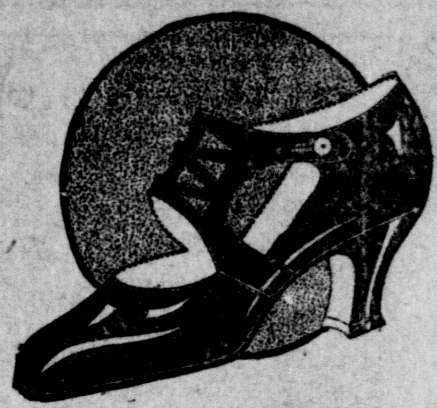

"Dulcy," whom I play in my new picture, is a wife who insists on mixing in, despite her husband's pleas, just when he is making a bluff for big stakes. She means well, but her mistakes nearly drive her husband and the others involved to the madhouse. Wives should respect the privacy of their husbands' business affairs."

"Dulcy" was directed by Producer Joseph M. Schneck by Sidney Franklin and is a First National picture. It will be shown at the McSwain Theatre today.

EDITORIAL REFLECTION OF A JUST AND REASONABLE PUBLIC ATTITUDE

From "The El Reno Democrat," Oc. 30, 1923, and Re-printed Here Through the Courtesy of That Publication.

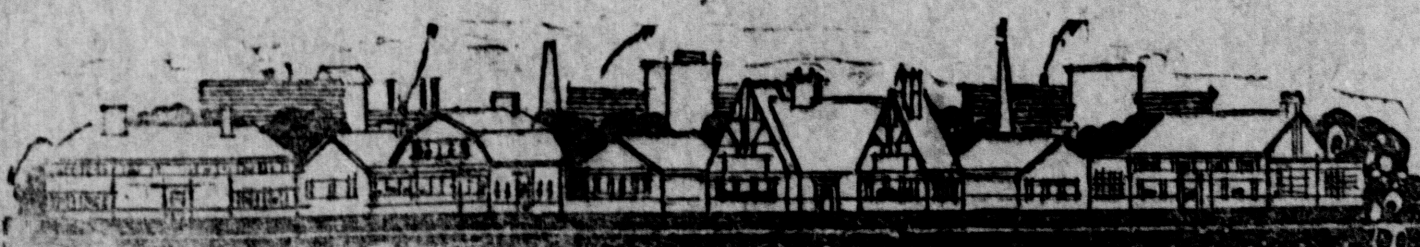

While at times we are prone to condemn and criticize our public service corporations, and to relate, it is done too often because it appears the popular thing to do, yet it must be admitted that in times of emergency and catastrophe, the every day efficiency and desire to serve, is brought out in greater relief than ordinarily. At least that is true in El Reno. Day after day we are served with transportation facilities, gas and electric service, telephone and like service. We take this as a matter of fact, giving but little heed to the wonderful organization that is behind each utility, working that we may have the modern comforts, conveniences and necessities. Lives are sacrificed daily that the public may be served, yet as long as the service continues we give little thought of the man power and the enormous expenditures that operate and finance these great organizations. In the past two weeks flood conditions have caused a shortage of water in El Reno, interrupted electric service, and rural and long distance telephone service, the city was without natural gas for two weeks; it was during those periods of inconvenience that the value of our public utilities was brought home to us. The Rock Island had men on hand ready to make bridge and track repairs almost before the high waters had completed their devastation, and the work went forward unceasingly until transportation was re-established. Here in El Reno when high water broke the water mains of the city, it was the Rock Island which came forward in the emergency and built a temporary line across the river. It was not an easy task, and the workers faced many discouragements, but defeat to the workers was only an added incentive and the new line was put across. Rock Island engineers and employees did the work, which was personally supervised by the El Reno officials of the railroad. Before highways were really passable, and high water had barely begun to recede, a crew of telephone linemen were at work north of the city doing their utmost to get their lines across the swollen stream. When the city's electric current was cut off, when high waters took out portions of the "high line," workmen of the company (Oklahoma Gas & Electric) went to work almost immediately to restore the line, and sufficient temporary repairs were made to resume service. The repairs to the gas mains of the Oklahoma Natural Gas Company consumed more time than usual because the workmen were handicapped by conditions left by the flood, over which they had no control. Yet that line was put across. There utilities were actuated by the one desire, resumption of service. Certainly we readily admit that resumption of service also means resumption of revenue for the utility company. Yet we must also admit that resumption of service means a resumption of our comforts and conveniences and necessities. There is a certain pride about public utility concerns and their employer to give "service," and they labor unflinchingly and without hope of reward, and oftentimes endanger their lives to see that that service is given. It is not the daily wage that keeps the railroad man working industriously to relay a washed out track, or repair a bridge; it is not day's pay that forces a telephone or electric lineman to plunge into the swollen torrent of river on a cold day to attempt to get his lines across, it is not the greed of money that forces the men who repair our gas lines to work all day and part of the night in mud and water, and with their clothing soaking wet. Money has its attractions, no doubt, and we all are more or less attracted thereby, yet there must be a still higher motive that actuates the workman for the public utility company or any other concern, when he goes to the extent of endangering his life, that we may have "uninterrupted service." Public utility companies or any others, must have a high standard themselves, to have men in their employ who co-operate in giving service. Those companies which serve El Reno with transportation, fuel, power or light or in other ways, are to be complimented on the manner in which they met the emergencies of the past two weeks, and we the people must learn to better appreciate the work of these concerns. Patience and co-operation on our part often assists in securing "resumption of service" more speedily than will unwarranted criticism.

COUGHS are frequently due merely to irritation caused by a congested condition of throat and lung tissue. Persistent hacking will then only increase the congestion and continue the cough indefinitely. Such coughs can and should be stopped at once because they are a futile waste of strength. Dr. King's New Discovery checks coughing quickly and without any bad after-effects. It quiets violent throat and lung spasms and gives the congestion a chance to clear away. It has an agreeable taste. All druggists.
